Machines, Money, Men
A Great Fight
Strange Russia
Does Baby Laugh?

By Arthur Brisbane

CONGRESSMEN WILL introduce presently bills for road building, requiring $350,000,000 in 1931. If the States should pay an equal amount, it will mean spending more than $700,000,000.

No wiser expenditure could be made, or better way found to put money into circulation.

The number employed, unfortunately, would be small, since modern road making is done by machinery, spreading out the path of cement, as buckwheat batter is spread on a hot griddle.

We have the money, the men and the machines, and they ought to be kept moving.

Did you see the New York prize fight between Kid Petrolle, Italian, and the plucky Irish lad, Jimmy McLarnin?

If not, you missed what spectators called "a wonderful fight." McLarnin was knocked down twice in the fourth round, his hand broken in the second round. His face was covered with blood from the start, his mouth, nose and eyes cut and bleeding. Once he took a count of nine. The referee and his backer wanted McLarnin to give in and stop, before the ten rounds ended. He would not, and fought through, bloody and battered.

You read: "The audience was delighted, men and women around the ring screamed and yelled enthusiastically."

One prosperous citizen from out of town dropped dead. He'll have something interesting to tell the angels.

When the greatest city in the world legalizes that kind of brutality, politicians taking their share of profits and men and women add that kind of "sport" to their amusement, you need not wonder that crime and racketeering have become important business enterprises.

Russia's government may fall and czars come back with grand dukes, to take from peasants the land they think they now own.

But some things that the Russians are doing, whether they fail or succeed, should stir up useful thought in other countries, that think themselves superior, including this country.

For instance, Mr. H. R. Knickerbocker, investigating Russian affairs for Cyrus H. K. Curtis, describes "the largest farm in the world," owned and run by the Russian government. It covers 642,000 acres, more than 1000 square miles.

Twenty-eight hundred permanent laborers are employed at 100 rubles ($50) a month. The government has invested $14,000,000 in the farm, 300,000 acres were sown this year in wheat and rye.

That is really applying methods of big industry to farming, about which we talk much and do little.

If your baby is solemn, doesn't laugh, and even declines to gurgle when you make foolish faces and sounds, don't be worried.

It is all a matter of temperament.

Two thousand five hundred and twenty-five tests made by the Child Development League Institute, at Columbia University, show that babies and very young children laugh rarely of their own accord.

Tickling is bad for them, and stirring up their brains against their will is harmful.

A young child is wiser than his father or grandfather, studies life earnestly, takes it seriously and doesn't laugh except at play.

Many speak of the "banker" with envy, assuming that his life is easy, his profits always big.

They need no longer envy R. E. Donnell, 63 years old, president of the Nashville Liberty Bank and Trust Co., which recently failed. He went to a hotel, put his watch and chain in an envelope addressed "To Ridgely E. Donnell, Jr., from Daddy," took a lace from one of his shoes and choked himself to death. Some men take their responsibilities more seriously than others.

Robinson Crusoe's island, called on the map "Juan Fernandez Island," off the coast of Chile, has a population of 298, according to Chile's census.

U.S. PLANES MAY SEEK GIRL FLIER

Washington, Nov. 29—Naval and Army fliers are ready to aid in the search for Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller, Australian aviatrix, who has not been seen since she hopped off from Havana for Miami, Fla., early yesterday, the Navy and War Departments announced today.

They said no official order from Washington is necessary to enlist the government fliers in the search "as the commandants of the various air bases have authority to dispatch units."

Search for Mrs. Keith-Miller continued today without result. Capt. R. T. Menner, a commandant at Key West naval station, reported that no trace of Mrs. Keith-Miller or her plane had been found. Radio broadcasts to vessels in the waters of the Gulf of Mexico and

75,000 Watch Army Play Irish in Storm

Soldier Field, Chicago, Nov. 29 (AP)—Winter's "Four Horsemen"—cold, snow, sleet and ice—rode against the Army and Notre Dame today as these two undefeated elevens collided in the season's gridiron clasic on the frozen turf of Soldier Field.

Although more than 100,000 tickets had been sold, indications were that only half that number of spectators would witness the game. Three-quarters of an hour before the kick-off, the cold driving rain, intermittently turning into sleet, with snow threatening presented a bleak, dismal setting for the game.

SPECTATORS SUFFER

In the huge stadium, rain-soaked and ice-coated as a result of an all-night downpour, spectators were equipped with all kinds of covering to protect them. Early arrivals stood up and watched hundreds of workmen removing the foot-thick blanket of hay from the gridiron. Men with wheelbarrows followed the workers, spraying the field with shovels full of sand in an attempt to provide firmer footing.

The gridiron, after the had had been removed, was solidly frozen and had to be remarked with chalk lines.

Notre Dame, with eight triumphs already registered, in its march to

FIRE DESTROYS DO-X WING

Lisbon, Nov. 29 (AP) — Fire broke out in the great German seaplane DO-X, moored in the harbor here, today, consuming one of the huge wings before it was extinguished.

The wings of the big ship contained quarters for some of the crew and important parts of the mechanical equipment. They were passageways to the motors, and while the craft was in flight the narrow spaces were filled with a tremendous roar.

When the fire was seen by members of the marine aviation staff ashore, sailors and Portuguese pilots volunteered by the dozen for the perilous job of fighting the fire but even their valiant efforts could not save the wing.

COUGARS SCORE ON VILLANOVA

Franklin Field, Philadelphia, Nov. 29 (AP)—Washington State's red-jerseyed cougars, champions of the Pacific Coast, led Villanova 7 to 0 at the end of the first half of their intersectional gridiron battle, but the Westerners wasted enough power to have rolled up three or four more touchdowns.

They were stopped three times in the second period inside the Villanova five-yard line by a spectacular defense.

The Cougars kicked off and recovered the ball on Villanova's 36-yard line as Halfback Donohue fumbled on the third play of the game. A 15-yard penalty for holding set Washington State back and

Sidelights at Fenway Park

Fenway Park, Nov. 29—Roads to Fenway Park looked like nervous rainbows, with all the maroon and gold of Boston College and the purple of Holy Cross dancing merrily in blasts that sent fans hiding into red flannels and raccoon coats.

Believe it or not a traffic cop asked what all the crowd was doing around Kenmore sq.

When he heard the rival cheering sections blow off, he must have sent in a riot call.

There was little confusion around the gates. Graduate manager of athletics at Boston College, John P. Curley and the officials at Fenway Park did a very efficient job in taking care of the 30,000 odd fans.

There were few speculators along the line. The frigid weather and the announcement that there were plenty of tickets left caused the boys who sell pastboards at a premium to seek other fields of endeavor.

A couple of fellows with shotguns were seen stalking a fur clad crowd. They were quite disappointed when told that they could not shoot at them, as they were only football fans who are still protected by law.

BLOCKED KICK GIVES PURPLE TOUCHDOWN IN 2D PERIOD

Two Teams Battle Through Remaining Periods Without Further Scoring

Fenway Park, Nov. 29 Entering the game a 10-to-8 favorite because of its season's record, with its 27 to 0 defeat of Harvard as a high spot, Holy Cross lived up to expectations this afternoon by defeating a hard-fighting, courageous Boston College team.

The game was hard fought throughout, again bearing out the traditions of past seasons in the clashes between the two teams.

The freezing weather kept the attendance down, about 35,000 persons being in the stands when the whistle blew. The field was frozen hard and fumbles were frequent.

Holy Cross led at the half, 7 to 0, as the result of a blocked punt late in the second period. Colbert of B. C. attempted to put from his own 12-yard line. The kick was blocked and rolled into the end zone, where Zyntell of Holy Cross fell on it for a gift touchdown. Griffin kicked the extra point.

The teams fought through the third period without any scoring. Phil O'Connell o fH. C. tried to get the Crusaders' aerial attack rolling, but his passes were all grounded or batted down by the alert Eagles.

Neither team was able to score in the fourth period.

FIRST PERIOD

Capt. Dixon lost the toss and Holy Cross chose to receive with the sun at its back. Antos made a poor kickoff which rolled along the ground as far as the 28-yard line.

The ball was received by Zyntell, who was covered by the entire B. C. line before the could move. Baker of H. C. was hurt and replaced by Murray. Garrity and Griffin tried the Maroon and Gold line, but found it impossible to penetrate, and Murray got off a long spiral which carried to the B. C. 15-yard line, where it was downed by the Purple.

On the first play Antos circled right end for five yards. Marr got through left tackle on a cross buck for a couple of yards. Then Colbert punted back to H. C.'s 35-yard stripe, where O'Connell was downed as he attempted a run back.

O'Connell dashed through the right side of the line and missed a first down by inches. Murray punted to the B. C. seven-yard line. Kelly made four yards through center.

HOOVER TO SEND LEAGUE COURT PACT TO SENATE NEXT WEEK

PARTY CHIEFS FEAR EXTRA SESSION

'Lame Duck' Congress Already Faces Big Relief Program

By EDWARD L. RODDAN

Washington, Nov. 29 (US)—President Hoover today invited legislative chaos and an extra session of the new Congress by announcing that he would submit the revised League Court protocol to the Senate next week.

The confusion which the President's unexpected pronouncement created was well illustrated by the variety of conflicting opinions which it brought forth from Senate leaders. Some were for immediate action, others favored a special session of the Senate next spring, while still others thought the matter should be swept aside in the interest of more pressing domestic issues.

"LOBBY" VICTORY

In making his announcement, President Hoover said:

"I am submitting the protocols of the World Court to the Senate at the forthcoming session. I, of course, have hoped that it would be dealt with at that time. It is for the leaders of the Senate, however, to determine if it should be brought up in the press of other business during the short session.

"Certainly it should not be made an instrument of obstruction in attempts to force an extra session."

The general impression was that in submitting the court protocol at this time, the President was bowing to intense "lobby pressure." Only last week, 100 outstanding League Court supporters sent a joint letter demanding that immediate action be taken.

SPLIT WITH LEADERS

The split which the President's pronouncement occasioned with his leaders in Congress was emphasized by the statement of Senator Watson of Indiana, who said he feared it would force an extra session of the new Congress. Watson is Republican floor leader and the key man in the Senate "old guard."

Precisely the same sentiment was expressed by Senator Vanderberg of Michigan, leader of the young guard which has so valiantly supported the President's legislative programs heretofore.

More trouble was indicated for the White House in the announcement of Senator Borah, chairman of the powerful foreign relations committee, that he would call his committee together for early consideration of the protocol.

BIG PROGRAM AHEAD

Confronting the "Lame Duck" Congress which convenes next week, is the herculean task of passing the government supply bills, enacting legislation to relieve the unemployed, and legislation to relieve the agricultural states which suffered from the drought.

Already the Progressives have threatened to force an extra session of Congress, by holding up the supply bills, if the administration fails to pass their program at the short session. The reaction of the Progressives was chiefly irritation at the fact that the President should inject a foreign issue at a time when so many domestic problems are pressing for solution.

The League Court was originally ratified by the Senate in 1926 with five reservations designed to safeguard the interests and traditional policies of the United States. This country failed to become a member of the court, however, because the other member nations refused to accept the American reservations.

To overcome these foreign objections, a substitute was later worked out for reservation 5, which has since been known as the "Root-Hurst formula." The entire fight when the issue comes up again will center around this formula.

Johnson Calls Court Plan Challenge to Americanism

Universal Service

San Francisco, Nov. 29:

"This is a challenge to Americanism and it will be met!"

Thus did Senator Hiram W. Johnson declare with vehemence his position upon learning the President plans to present the world court protocol to Congress at the short session which convenes Monday.

Senator Johnson, on his departure for Washington, D. C., declared "It will be a real fight."

His statement follows:

"The challenge to Americanism will be met to the fullest. It will take up a lot of time. It will be a real fight.

"Those who believe in this country first will do their utmost to prevent the internationalists from taking this country into European controversies.

"It will be resisted to the finish."

Further Senator Johnson commented:

"It is a most unfortunate thing that with American citizens crying for work, with men, women and children hungry in this country, the Congress of the United States which should be engaged in relief of Americans should be called upon to take this country into Europe.

"Of course," Senator Johnson added, "A special session of Congress is among the possibilities."

Predicted Her Fate Before She Hopped

(Copyright, 1930, All Rights Reserved By the Associated Press.)

Havana, Nov. 29 (AP)—A premonition of death which she thrust aside through fear of being thought a coward, haunted Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller, plucky Australian woman aviator, who, air officials here feared today, perished yesterday in an attempt to fly from Havana to Miami.

Practically all hope has been abandoned for her safety, searching parties in six airplanes from here and Miami having flown for hours over the stretch of gulf and Florida Keys without a trace of her or the plane in which she set out at 9:11 a. m. yesterday on a comparatively short jump to Miami.

Friends of Mrs. Keith-Miller made here since her arrival last week from Pittsburgh accused themselves today of not having prevented her, forcibly if necessary, from making the flight against which were all the odds of a poorly conditioned plane, extremely rough weather, and above all the mental hazard arising from fright when she was flying over water.

FEARED DISASTER

"I don't know why it is, but something tells me I'm going down," she said just before she took off. "I've had this feeling ever since I crossed on the way over from Florida, and somehow or other I can't shake it off."

Continuing, she called her plane an "unairworthy crate, one which anybody but myself would refuse to fly," explaining that it was a conditionally licensed ship which she had "rescued from a junkpile" and reconditioned.

"I am trying to put myself over as a commercial pilot," she stated frankly. "If I can make a flight like that in an old ship without any of the usual equipment, it ought to be an easy matter to get some company interested in using me as a regular pilot."

WORRIED BY WATER HOP

Many of those who came in contact with Mrs. Keith-Miller during her week's residence here remarked at her preoccupation and at her comments of not having been able to eat or to sleep properly. She admitted to some that she "was worried about the water hop," but she refused to consider the idea of not making the return trip in her plane alone, and finally, after being held up by weather reports for three days, insisted on starting even though the weather still was bad.

"Everyone gives me credit for being brave, and to make a go of it. I never let them think otherwise," she confessed. "But really I am afraid, desperately afraid, when I'm over water, or mountains, or rough country. I got lost in the Alleghenies not long ago and the fog seemed to hang over me like a death shroud. I was terribly afraid.

COULDN'T GIVE UP

"I feel many times like giving it up, because I know it's eventually going to get me. But I can't—people would think me a coward. I guess I've just got to keep on until it does get me. Life at its best is short anyhow, so I guess I have no complaint coming."

She commented that what worried her most was that she had no blind-flying instruments or turn and bank indicator. Asked why she had not equipped her plane with the latter instrument she said:

"Frankly, I could not afford one."

Aviation officials, returning to Havana aboard the two planes which flew over her route until darkness forced their return last night, declared that not even a stout seaplane could stay afloat in those waves.

"That 'Bullet'—So her plane was called—lived up to its name; it went straight down if it had to make a pancake drop to the sea," they said.

92,000 BRITISH MINERS TO QUIT

London, Nov. 29 (AP)—Complete stoppage of work in all Scottish coal fields beginning tomorrow afternoon was announced today following a breakdown of the negotiations between the mine owners and workers. The stoppage will affect 92,000 men.

Apparently the only thing which could possibly prevent this strike would be government intervention, and it was expected that at last-minute meeting between the government and the disputants would be called tonight or tomorrow.

Meantime owners and workers in the South Wales fields still were negotiating in an effort to avert a general strike in that area.

BIGGEST MOVIE BOOM IS SEEN NEXT YEAR

Budgets of Many Millions Set Up by Hollywood's Big Producers

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 29 (AP)—The greatest motion picture production boom since the advent of talking pictures was forecast today for 1931 by Hollywood studio executives, who predicted the new activity would get under way before the end of January.

Adolph Zukor, film executive, announced Paramount-Publix studios would produce at Hollywood sites next year 55 or 60 feature pictures under a budget estimated at $25,000,000. He said the company's New York studios would complete 17 new features, while the Paris plant would "shoot" a number of foreign versions.

Louis B. Mayer, vice president of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, said his organization's Culver City plant would double its production. Fifty-two features will be produced, in addition to an equal number of foreign pictures.

Plans for production of 72 Warner Brothers and First National Pictures were announced by Jack L. Warner, vice president. The executive said the next year's production program would be the largest ever undertaken by the company.

United Artists will undertake 20 features, Joseph M. Schenck, president, estimated this production would cost approximately $15,000,000. A like amount will be expended at Universal City under the direction of Carl Laemmle, Jr.

Fox Film Corp. officials are working on a program calling for approximately 50 features and Radio Pictures plans a budget with 34 or more. Pathe is planning an active new program and the larger independent units such as Columbia and Tiffany are going ahead with plans for expenditures of millions of dollars.

TWO RESCUED IN LYNN BLAZE

A small child and an aged man were rescued and 33 other persons were forced to flee today when fire starting in the Ziman Malt & Hop Shop in the Hotel Winthrop building on Summer st., Lynn, worked its way to the upper floors.

One of the rescued was Charles Sing, 82, Lynn's oldest Chinaman and perhaps the only public sun worshiper in the State. James Sullo, two years old, was rescued by his mother, Elizabeth Sullo, from a third floor room.

When firemen arrived the flames were leaping from the rear windows on the first and second floor of the building. A second alarm was sounded.

Thomas A. Edison sent a dictating machine, ornamented with gold and ivory, to Pope Pius, and received from the Pope yesterday a medal of solid gold with a picture of the Pope on one side, of Vatican City on the other.

Long ago, at the request of this writer, Mr. Edison sent a similar machine, more primitive, to the great Russian, Tolstoy, who wrote: "I had to live to be 70 years old to know how to do my work easily."

The Russian government held the suspicious dictating machine a long time for investigation.

"The blood is the life." That ancient saying influences orthodox slaughtering of food animals in Jewish communities, and its influence is interestingly revealed in the case of a Jewish patient in a London hospital, according to the Jewish Telegraphic Agency.

The man is dying, a member of the London Blood Transfusion Service is called to give blood to the dying man. When the latter heard that the giver of blood was a Gentile he refused the transfusion, saying he would rather die.

Differences in blood are many and strange. Exactly the right combination is necessary to make transfusion successful. The wrong combination has often proved fatal.

It has not before been suggested that blood of another race or religion might change character, thought and personality.

Recent Elections Prove Fanatical Prohibition Support Is Worthless

"Whom the gods would destroy they first make mad."

Witness the intemperate wrath of the Reverend Doctor Clarence True Wilson, general secretary of the Methodist Board of Temperance.

Dr. Wilson's wrath has been kindled by the fact that the Federal Farm Board has given financial assistance to California growers who distribute grape concentrate, and the Department of Justice has failed to prohibit the distribution.

This church leader publicly threatens the political future of President Hoover if Mr. Hoover does not show himself to be as fanatical in support of prohibition as this divine has shown himself to be.

Liberals could not do a wiser thing than encourage all extremists like Dr. Wilson to do their worst for prohibition and against real temperance because their worst, as the verdict of the great jury of the people proves, amounts to so little.

IN California, the Republican candidate for governor in the November election was a liberal. He was not a drinking man himself but a man who believed that prohibition was not temperance and who consequently did not favor prohibition.

All the fanatics declared against Rolph, liberal Republican for governor. So the Democratic candidate thought he would take advantage of this opportunity to win votes for himself.

He came out as a bone dry.

Fanatics all supported him as the prohibition candidate.

He was beaten by 650,000.

ROLPH, THE LIBERAL, WON BY THE LARGEST MAJORITY EVER GIVEN TO A GOVERNOR IN THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA.

Rolph, the liberal, opposed by the prohibitionists and the fanatics, CARRIED EVERY COUNTY IN THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA.

Rolph, the liberal, opposed to prohibition, carried one county UNANIMOUSLY—that is every voter in that county voted for him and not one voter in that county voted against him.

WHAT happened to the Democratic candidate for governor of California, who was supported by prohibitionists?

HE RAN BEHIND HIS TICKET. Even the Democratic candidate for lieutenant-governor polled more votes than he did.

In other words, the support of the prohibitionists in the recent California campaign for governor actually hurt the candidate they supported.

Roosevelt, liberal Democrat, won a re-election for governor by 725,000, in the State of New York. Rolph, liberal Republican, won his election for governor by 650,000 in the State of California.

But 650,000 is a much larger percentage of the vote in California than 725,000 is in New York.

For 725,000 is only 24 per cent of the vote in New York State—namely, 3,000,000.

But 650,000 is 50 per cent of the total vote in California—namely, 1,300,000.

So, if Mr. Hoover only knew it, the opposition of fanatical prohibitionists of the type of Dr. Wilson would be a definite asset for him.

In fact, if the fanatics would only support the Democratic ticket in 1932 Hoover might be re-elected President of the United States as triumphantly as Rolph was elected the other day governor of California.

The declaration of Dr. Wilson is not a threat; IT IS A PROMISE.

The robbery, which netted the bandits about $1000, was committed in a lighted building and was unnoticed by hundreds of pedestrians.

Ex-Marine Dying After Collapse

Charles Rice, 39, of Brooklyn, N. Y., former U. S. Marine, collapsed in the La Grange St. station yesterday where he had gone to request an ambulance to take him to the Marine Hospital in Chelsea.

While waiting at the station Rice's condition became so critical that police rushed him to the City Hospital where he was found to be suffering from internal hemorrhages.

Sue Pollard, Virginia's First Lady, Turns to Stage

Washington, Nov. 29 (AP)—Bride-to-be and official hostess, Miss Sue Pollard, daughter of the governor of Virginia, came to the stage today in Barrie's play "A Miss Cinderella."

Sue Pollard

Washington society was eager to see Miss Pollard in a role made famous by Maude Adams. Mrs. William Howard Taft, Mrs. Patrick Hurley, wife of the secretary of war, and many other prominent persons were among ticket purchasers from the Junior Theater presentation at the Belasco Theater this morning.

Miss Pollard may be married in January to Lee Boatwright, young Washington attorney, but she plans several theatrical engagements thereafter in Baltimore, Boston and Philadelphia.

Ralph Ince Is Sued After Pistol Play

Los Angeles, Nov. 29—Ralph Ince, motion picture director and actor, was sued by W. M. Patch for $35,000 damages yesterday. Patch alleged he was seriously injured on October 25 in attempting to prevent Ince from assaulting an unnamed third party with a pistol in a cafe in Beverly Hills.

Ralph Ince

Patch said he tried to grab a pistol from Ince but the director struck him on the head with it.

Patch alleges he was laid up for some time and that permanent injuries have resulted.

Naomi Childers Lets Reed Save on Alimony

Los Angeles, Nov. 29 (AP)—The alimony payment of Luther Reed, film director, was reduced by half when his first divorced wife, Naomi Childers, dismissed her contempt of court case brought because of a $1000 arrearage in her alimony.

Naomi Childers

Reed has to pay Miss Childers $250 monthly and Jocelyn Lee, his second wife, who has a divorce suit pending, $100 monthly.

The director has sued Miss Lee on a cross complaint and filed action to reduce the alimony of both women.

ROCKEFELLER ISSUES THANKSGIVING MESSAGE TO THE WORLD

FINDS SOLACE IN DAILY PRAYER

Aged Oil Man Looks Forward to Winter in Florida; Admirer of Coolidge

By BENTON E. JACOBS

Jacksonville Fla., Nov. 29 (AP)—John D. Rockfeller—"Neighbor John" to his Florida friends arrived here this morning, en route to his winter home at Ormond Beach.

Hardly had greetings been exchanged with the interviewer when he said he had a message of thanksgiving for the world.

Falteringly but clearly he read:

"If I am weak and you are strong,
"Why then, why then,
"To you the braver deeds belong,
"And so, again,
"If you have gifts and I have none,
"If I have shade and you have sun,
" 'Tis yours with freer hand to give,
" 'Tis yours with truer grace to live,
"Than I, who, giftless, sunless stand,
"With barren life and hand."

FIND SOLACE IN PRAYER

He explained it was a part of the daily reading at his breakfast table each morning.

"That is," he said, "a beautiful and timely sentiment, written by one of our well known poets."

There is also morning prayer at the Rockefeller board. He said he found solace in a prayer of thanksgiving and "golden rule."

Again he read:

"Lord, make us willing to share with others the blessings wherewith Thou hast crowned our lives, Help us to understand that our really greatest gain is in sharing with others what Thou hast so graciously given to us. Freely we have received from Thy bountiful hand; may we in turn freely give of ourselves to those who need what we can give. As our Lord made each life that touched Him richer thereby, so may we make our lives a source of blessing for His sake, remembering that as we give to others we give to Him.—Amen."

"Neighbor John" sat in thoughtful silence for a moment.

"If I could get that message to the world," he said, "I would feel that I had done a good deed. Nothing I might say myself express my sentiments half so well."

Appearing in fine spirits and enjoying "splendid health" Mr. Rockefeller said his party had a "delightful trip" to Florida.

TERMS GOLF A "GREAT" GAME

Asked about his golf, the genial "Mr. R." as he is known to his household staff, quickly replied:

"Never better. It is a splendid game and keeps us out in the open. Do you play?"

He appeared immediately interested in the subject of his favorite sport. He could not say if he would be able this year to play with his companion, Gen. Ames. Mr. Rockefeller was not certain the general would be South this winter.

Sitting in the early morning sunshine, beside a window of his special car, Mr. Rockefeller turned to a discussion of writing. He said he was an ardent admirer of the writings of Calvin Coolidge.

"They express so much," he added. "I wrote him when I read the first one of his articles and congratulated him."

Alertly interested, Mr. Rockefeller glanced over the headlines on the newspaper his secretary placed beside him.

As the train pulled out on the last stage of the journey to Ormond Beach, Mr. Rockefeller halted his interviewer long enough to give him a collection of shiny new dimes—

"One each," he explained, "for each member of your family."

Reed Fears War Is Brewing in Europe

Pittsburgh, Nov. 29 (AP)—Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania said in a speech at an American Legion post meeting here last night that a "devil's broth" was brewing in Europe.

"I hope I am not unduly pessimistic, but I believe that if it were not for the apprehension of Bolshevism the countries of Europe would be at each other's throats this very minute," he said.

Cambridge Woman to Wed Third Husband

Providence, Nov. 29—Declaring this to be the third matrimonial venture of both, applications were made today for marriage intentions of Mrs. Ella Budlong Campbell, 60, of Blake st., Cambridge, Mass., and Fred Wescott Sarl, 63, of Shawmut, R. I. The couple appeared before the license clerk in Cranston. The woman listed herself as a "writer for publications." The man is a carpenter.

NOTED FLIER AND THE all-white plane she used in the National air tour of 1929 and in other contests. Mrs. Keith-Miller made her flight to Cuba in a plane she "rescued from a junkpile," and knew it was not air-worthy, but thought if she could fly an old ship without proper equipment successfully she would be able to get a job as commercial pilot. Six planes have hunted the sea in vain for any trace of her.

"SOMETHING TELLS ME I am going down," she said just before she hopped off from Havana. She feared flying over water, but said she did not dare quit, because everyone thought her brave.

VIRGINIA CREED CHURCH BRIDE

In the presence of a large delegation of state and city officials, judges, lawyers, bankers and leading business men, Miss Virginia Creed, daughter of Mrs. Cornelius Creed, and niece of the late Judge Michael J. Creed of South Boston, became the bride today of Alonzo Wright Perry, 3d, of Commonwealth ave., in St. Augustine's Church, South Boston.

The wedding was solemnized by Rev. Richard Burke, following a nuptial mass at 10 o'clock.

The bride was attended by Miss Dorothy Denning, maid of honor and by the Misses Virginia Wise, Helen Leonard, Virginia Burke and Pauline Long as bridesmaids.

Edward H. Costello, Boston newspaperman and a close friend of the groom, acted as best man.

The bride was attired in a gown of white satin trimmed with ivory lace, and carried calla lilies. After the ceremony the bridal party retired to the Longwood Towers, Brookline, where relatives and friends had gathered for the wedding breakfast and reception.

Sacco-Vanzetti Case Cited at Trial of Soviet Plot

Moscow, Nov. 29 (AP)—The trial and execution of Sacco and Vanzetti came out of the files of the Russian newspapers today and went into the interminable columns which those papers have been devoting to the trial of eight men charged with plotting to overthrow the Stalin government.

"Of course," said the newspaper Izvestia, "Soviet justice cannot be compared to the Bourgeois justice which executed Sacco and Vanzetti in spite of documental proof of their innocence."

WANT MORE EVIDENCE

This was the general tenor of long editorials and news accounts concerning the trial which already would have been over under the American legal system. All the defendants have confessed their crime in overwhelming detail. They have put in no defense and made no plea for leniency.

Yet N. B. Krilenko, the fiery public prosecutor, is subjecting the defendants to merciless cross-examination, and he has called additional witnesses, even though he has deduced enough evidence already to justify a decision by the four judges.

This, it was frankly admitted by the newspapers, is with a view to rubbing into the Soviet masses the heinous nature of the crime of treason for which these men are on trial.

CALL IT JUSTICE

Criticizing intimations in the foreign press that this trial is a "frame-up" for purposes of intimidating anti-Soviet elements in Russia, one of the leading Moscow newspapers asserts:

"Our proletarian court defends the interests of the proletariat, but those interests do not demand the execution of innocent men. The foreign press is doing its best to conceal the facts, but the accused would never be forced to bear the brand of Judas if they were not guilty."

4 Trainmen Killed in Crash

Stockton, Cal., Nov. 29 (AP)—Four trainmen were killed when a Western Pacific express crashed into the rear of a fast freight train near Sunol in Alameda county, west of here, last night.

CHINESE HOLD U. S. WOMAN

Peiping, China, Nov. 29 (AP)—An American woman missionary, Mrs. H. D. Hayward, urgently in need of a surgical operation, and her British nurse, Miss Gomersall, have been kidnapped by bandits and were believed today to be held for ransom. The woman left Lanchow, Kansu Province, late in October to come to Peiping. When 20 miles from the railhead of Pao Touchen, bandits held up the raft on which they were traveling.

The women were robbed of their clothing and everything else they possessed. Friends here are anxious for them in view of the intense cold and Mrs. Hayward's condition.

Captured Nurse Is on Lanchow Hospital Staff

London, Nov. 29 (AP)—Miss F. Gomersall, British nurse, who, with Mrs. H. B. Hayward, American missionary, has been captured by bandits, is one of the staff of the hospital at Lanchow. Her home is at Scunthorpe, Lincolnshire.

5 Nuns, 4 Priests Yet Held by Reds

Shanghai, Nov. 29 (AP)—Bishop Mignani, Catholic prelate, captured by Reds and allowed to come here to collect ransom for priests and nuns taken with him, telegraphed today from Kianfu that six Chinese priests and five Chinese sisters had been released, but that the Reds had sent five foreign sisters and four foreign fathers to Tang, Kiangsu, under escort.

Alky Kills Vermont Man

Montreal, Nov. 29 (AP)—After collapsing on the courthouse steps Thomas Lewis, 42, of Cavendish, Vt., died in a hospital. Authorities believed death due to alcoholic poisoning.

Einstein Takes Half Hour Off for Daughter's Wedding

Berlin, Nov. 29 (AP)—Prof. Albert Einstein, who sets a relative value on things, alloted just one-half hour of his time this morning to see his daughter, Margot, married at the municipal marriage bureau.

The savant, who has been working until the early morning hours daily, calculated that he could spare just 30 minutes to give the bride away to Dr. Dimitri Marianoff, young Russian writer on scientific and artistic subjects. He failed to carry out his program and because a witness was late he lost a half hour in getting back to his quarters to work.

Ten minutes before the ceremony, which was set for 10:30 a. m., Einstein, his daughter, and Dr. Marianoff emerged from the professor's home and seemed greatly surprised to see several camera men outside.

"No, no, don't photograph," he exclaimed, greatly distressed. But finally he was persuaded to tarry a moment.

ISN'T DRESSED UP

While customarily in Germany a bride's father sports a topper for such an occasion and wears a cutaway to the marriage clerk's office and to the church, in case there is a church wedding afterwards, nothing in Herr Einstein's appearance indicated the solemnity of the occasion.

He seemed just to have emerged from the sound proof study in his home. His disheveled curly hair cropped out from beneath an old slouch hat and a shop-worn raincoat covered an ordinary business suit. He wore a celluloid collar. He was in strong contrast with his son-in-law, who was carefully groomed in a brand new ulster and looked anything but proletarian.

Miss Margot was dressed simply in a green velvet costume, adorned with grayish fur.

LOVE ON SIGHT

There were no festivities after the ceremony and the Einstein family gathered for lunch at home as usual. The young couple will use the Einstein apartment while the professor and his frau are on their American trip.

"It was a case of love at first sight with our daughter and her husband," Frau Einstein said. "One day, several months ago, Dr. Marianoff entered our house —from that moment Margot's heart was lost. We think all the world of our son-in-law."

It was understood here today that Fraulein Margot and Dr. Marianoff were members of a recent party led by Sir Rabindranath Tagore, Indian philosopher and poet, on an extended visit to Russia.

100 CALLED IN BIG N. Y. VICE GRAFT QUIZ

Spy Who "Framed" Women and Bribe-Taker Questioned Again; Governor May Act

New York, Nov. 29 (AP)—More than a hundred persons were subpoenaed today to tell what they know of graft from vice.

Referee Samuel Seabury signed the orders yesterday requiring citizens in many walks of life to appear next week at the appellate division's inquiry into magistrates' courts.

Meanwhile, "Chile" Mapocha Acuna, stool pigeon, and John C. Weston, former acting prosecutor, were questioned further in Special Counsel Isidor Kresel's office.

BRIBERY CONFESSED

Acuna has testified at public sessions he was hired by police to "frame" women on immorality charges and Weston has said he collected $20,000 in eight years from lawyers and bondsmen to dismiss 600 of these cases.

Additional demands for a non-partisan, legislative investigation of the city administration are in Governor Roosevelt's hands. William J. Schieffelin, chairman of the Citizens' Union; the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, former president of the Federation of Churches, and Benjamin E. Weeks, president of the New York Society for the City of New York, wrote to the governor on the basis of revelations in the magistrates' inquiry and the Healy-Tommaney trial.

HUNTS HEALY PARTNER

Governor Roosevelt has said at Warm Springs, Ga., that he had no statement to make on previous demands for an investigation.

Search for new evidence on which to retry Martin J. Healy and Thomas T. Tommaney, former city employes, on charges of selling a magistracy, went forward under the direction of Prosecutor Hiram C. Todd.

He is seeking Herman Bitterman, former partner of Healy, who figured in the testimony.

Smith's Name Used Without Permission

New York, Nov. 29 (INS)—Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith and several other prominent New Yorkers today denied they had authorized use of their names on the letterhead of an organization which made public a copy of a letter sent to Gov. Roosevelt. The letter said corruption was rampant in New York and urged him to order a legislative investigation. The letter was sent to Governor Roosevelt by the New York Society for the City of New York.

Virginia Governor Visits Strike Scene

Richmond Va., Nov. 29 (AP)—Governor Pollard left Richmond by automobile today for Danville to make a personal survey of the strike situation there as part of his investigation of the protest by union officials against the dispersing of pickets by state troops.

Next Station on Line Is Prosperity

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Every cloud has its silver lining.

But it won't plate your umbrella.

Last month we were holding stocks for a long pull.

Today we feel less like the tooth and more like the dentist.

The reaction started when U. S. Steel woke up, shook itself and asked:

"What became of last year?"

U. S. Steel is the bell cow of the herd. When it comes back the market arrives with it.

But it takes time. The market is exactly like Deacon Jones of Alabama.

The deacon was passing a churchyard at midnight.

The deacon was chased by a ghost.

That ghost ran the deacon so far in five minutes that it took the deacon one year to get back.

We got the same kind of a chase in October, 1929.

But we ran a little further than the good old deacon.

Cast Chosen for League Play

Mrs. C. Terry Collens and Peggy Bent to Have Two of the Leading Roles

PEGGY BENT AND MRS. C. TERRY COLLENS will take two of the leading parts in the Junior League production "Bluebird," which will take place at the Repertory Theater after Christmas. Miss Bent will assume the character of Tytyl and Mrs. Collens that of Mytyl. Another part, The Cat, will be taken by Miss Katherine Gray and The Dog by Miss Sarah Bradlee. Night will be represented by Mrs. Stearns Poor, Light by Miss Sally Wambolt, Bread by Miss Harriet White, Fire by Miss Gabriella Ladd, Water by Eugenia Frothingham and Sugar by Miss Rebecca Benson.

THE SCENERY HAS BEEN designed by Mrs. Charles Lindsay, 3rd, a former member of the Boston league now living in Chicago. Rehearsals for the play are being held every day at the league. The Chicago premiere of the Associated Junior League production has taken place with the greatest success and the scenery, costumes and properties, in the charge of Betty Spock, business manager and member of the New Haven Junior League, will come to Boston, thereby beginning its tour of the 15 leagues who are to give the play during the winter.

THIS PARTICULAR PLAY has been chosen because of its appeal to both old and young. It reaches the older portion of the audience through the mysticism and enchantment of its lines, and carries the youthful audience through the humor of the animal scenes, the adventures of Mytyl and Tytyl and through the color and imaginativeness of the whole production. The first performance will take place Saturday, December 27, in the afternoon, and again on Monday, December 29, and Tuesday, December 30.

Mary E. Warren in Bow to Society at Hotel Somerset

MISS MARY E. WARREN, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Warren of Brookline, made her formal bow to society at a large ball at the Hotel Somerset last evening. She wore a white taffeta brocaded with gold leaves and carried pink roses. Mrs. Warren was attired in wine-red velvet. The ushers' dinner was given at the Chilton Club before the dance which was attended by about 70 guests. Joseph Warren, Jr., headed the usher corps which included two younger brothers, Richard Warren and Howland S. Warren, and two cousins of the debutante, Alexander Williams, and Moses Williams, Jr.

OTHERS WHO ASSISTED IN ushering were Sargent Cheever, David Crocket, George Homans, John F. Perkins, Jr., James Lawrence, Jr., Augustin H. Mary Augusta Field to Become Bride of Henry B. Jackson

ANNOUNCEMENT IS MADE of the engagement of Miss Mary Augusta Field to Henry Bigelow Jackson, son of Walter Jackson of Milton. Miss Field is a fifth descendant of Commodore William Vanderbilt, founder of that family in this country. She was introduced to society last year after being graduated from Foxcroft School, and last winter she studied in Munich, Germany. Mr. Jackson was graduated from Milton Academy in 1923 and from Harvard in 1927. He is now master of the Belmont Hill School, Belmont, and is spending the week-end in Lenox with his fiancee at her home.

IMPERSONATIONS OF Queen Victoria will be on the program at the Milton Club this evening by Peter Joray of New York, given under the auspices of the Sentinels of the Republic. Miss Grace Cushing is in charge of the ushers, who include Caroline Saltonstall, Mary Chase, Barbara Warner, Susan Dette and Sylvia Watson. Mr. Joray will be entertained by the Misses Cummins at their home on Canton ave. before the performance, and while in Milton will be the house guest of Mr. W. B. Pratt on Brush Hill.

MRS. CURTIS GUILD, WHO has been confined to her home on Marlborough st. for a few weeks with a slight illness, is rapidly recovering and will soon be able to take up her social and civic duties again, among them her disabled war veterans' work, which is so dear to her heart.

Lupe Velez Denies She's Gary's Bride

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 29—Lupe Velez, Mexican film actress, said yesterday:

"When, and if, I'm married to Gary Cooper, I'll sure tell the world about it."

She made the comment in emphatically denying rumors she had wed the film cowboy.

"That wedding ring, oh, that's my mother's," the actress declared when asked about the platinum band she wore.

4 Admirals to Attend

Among the celebrities from the army, navy and marine corps who will attend the army and navy ball on Friday evening, December 5, at the Copley-Plaza, will be four rear admirals.

Prohibition Reform Board Delegates Chosen

By NANCY BREWSTER

Mrs. William Putnam of Boston and Mrs. Roger Lowell Putnam of Springfield, will officially represent the Massachusetts branch of Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform when the national executive committee meets in Louisville, Ky., Dec. 3.

Particular stress is to be laid upon development of the organization in dry sections of the country since it is the belief of the women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform that the majority of women in so-called dry states are dissatisfied with the present prohibition condition.

"They are merely unorganized and consequently inarticulate," officials of the organization maintain and since it is their purpose to organize such un-organized groups of women, women anti-prohibitionists will voice their opinions in other parts of the country.

Under the chairmanship of Mrs. James Ross Todd of Louisville, the Kentucky division will handle arrangements. Mrs. William Putnam is chairman of the fact finding committee and Mrs. Roger Putnam, Springfield leader.

National officers of the organization are: Mrs. Courtlandt Nicoll, Mrs. William C. Potter, and Mrs. Pomeroy T. Francis, New York; Mrs. John B. Casserly, California; Mrs. Graham Dougherty, Pennsylvania; Mrs. Andrenini, South Carolina; Mrs. Houston Whiteside, Kansas; Mrs. Gertrude Bowler and Mrs. Benjamin F. Bart, Wisconsin; Mrs. W. E. Norvell, Jr., Tennessee; Mrs. F. Lothrop Ames, Boston; Mrs. Henry B. Joy, Michigan; Miss Maude K. Wetmore, Rhode Island, and Mrs. Amasa Stone Mather, Ohio.

Jewish Women's College Club to Meet Wednesday

Next Wednesday the literary group of Jewish Women's College Club will meet at the home of Mrs. Rose Stolow Hurtvitz, 92 Beals st., Brookline, to hear Mrs. Edith Jurwitz Gettes discuss the life of Axel Munthe, the author. Mrs. Rosalind Sperber Frye will discuss his latest work, "The Story of San Michele." Under leadership of Mrs. Anne Wolfson Rubin, the group meets first and third Wednesday of the month.

In the evening of the same day, there will be a meeting at the Women's Republican Club with Dr. Clara Loitman speaker of the evening. "The Land of the Midnight Sun" is to be her subject.

Announcement is made of the club's first party of the season which comes next Saturday at Colonial Tea Room at 2:30 p. m. Proceeds will go to swell the scholarship fund for undergraduate girls. Mrs. Zelda Rosenberg Green of Jamaica Plain has charge of the affair.

St. Vincent's Guild to Hold Bridge and Whist on Monday

The Monday bridge and whist of St. Vincent Guild will be held at the home, 45 Guyette rd., No. Cambridge, with Mrs. Sarah Foley of Cambridge as hostess. Friday, December 5 is the date of the Guild's regular meeting and will also be held at the home with Mrs. Joseph Eichorn, presiding.

Next Tuesday the ways and means committee will conduct a bridge at the Guild headquarters, St. Rose Hall, 17 Worcester st.

Mrs. Storrow to Be Honor Guest at Club Week-end Party

In honor of Mrs. James J. Storrow, first president of the Women's City Club, several club members who have been closely associated with her, have arranged a week-end party at Cendar Hill Mansion, Waltham, for today and tomorrow. Miss Mary Caroline Crawford and Mrs. Storrow are to act as hostesses. At the dinner tonight, a number of talks have been planned. They are to be given by Mrs. Elsie Chamberlain, Miss Josephine Emerson, Miss Alice H. Grady, Miss Alfretta McClure and Miss Crawford.

"What the Women's City Club Means to Us in Our Work and in Our Daily Lives," is the subject of the more or less symposium.

Miss Laetitia Bolton, publicity director of the club, announces for next Tuesday evening the appearance of Dorothy Richardson, contralto, soloist for the Boston Community Church, who will offer a program at 8:15 at the clubhouse.

League of Women Voters to Discuss Child Delinquency

The need of a domestic relations court in Boston will be discussed at a study group session of the Public Welfare Department of Boston League of Women Voters, the preliminary meeting to be held at 3 Joy st., next Tuesday at 2:45. Hans Weiss, former probation officer of Boston juvenile court, will address the group informally. Then will follow the formulation of definite plans for regular meetings in January.

This study group will follow very closely the work done last year considering juvenile delinquency problems. Mrs. LaRue Brown, Miss Opal Slater, Mrs. Leverett D. Greeger and Dr. M. Luise Diez are interested in such a group and ask the co-operation of others who may be interested in the study.

Reorganization of State Nursing Ass'n Planned by Board

When the executive committee of Massachusetts Association of Directors of Public Health Nursing Organizations meet in annual session at the Y. W. C. A. next Wednesday they will recommend dissolution of the present association and the re-organization of a new body of public health nurses and all those interested generally in public health nursing in the state.

They will recommend that the new organization be called the Public Health Nursing Association of Massachusetts. Action to be taken on such amendments will come at the special open meeting arranged for at the opening session of the meeting at 11 a. m.

At the afternoon session, Prof. C. E. A. Winslow of the Department of Public Health at Yale University, will discuss "Where Are We Going in Public Health Nursing?" and Miss Sophie C. Nelson, president of the National Organization for Public Health Nursing, will talk on "The National Significance of a State Public Health Nursing Association."

Miss Gertrude W. Peabody, vice-president of the Boston Community Health Association, will preside.

B. U. Magazine to Resume Publication

After a lapse of publication for three weeks, The Beacon, Boston University's literary magazine, will resume publication again as a departmental magazine, it was announced today by Prof. Thomas R. Mather.

The Beacon started as an organ of the B. U. College of Liberal Arts, but last year branched forth as an all-university publication.

In the future the staff will be composed of students from the College of Liberal Arts who are recommended by the English department.

Softer Lines for Mature Figures

By ANN ARDEN

WHEN THE older woman, who has acquired a few extra pounds, discovers a frock of graceful and becoming lines, which may be worn appropriately on a variety of occasions, she has indeed found a prize.

• • •

THE GOWN pictured has grace and dignity. Of flat chiffon in a bright dark blue, the skirt has well placed fullness from a curved hip yoke; the V neck is embroidered in dull white beads, and the long sleeves have separate circular sections set on above the elbow. One's affection for such a frock should increase with wearing, its flattering lines being qualified to earn for the wearer all sorts of gratifying compliments.

• • •

THE CREPE effect that usually characterizes chiffon is giving way to a smooth surface. Flat chiffon receives the favor that is being accorded fabrics of smooth texture this season. Suede-like woolen fabrics, smooth heavy silks, lusterless satin are others that reveal the ascendency of the "flat" material.

• • •

IN DETAILS the mode sponsors beading on yokes and sleeves, the surplice cut, elongated peplums, unusual sleeve treatments and higher necklines.

• • •

WINTER'S FASHION story is beautifully embroidered. Plain facts and fabrics are made into unique and distinctive styles by the addition of a graceful bit of needlework. The gown of canton crepe, a plain fabric, is accented with embroidery at neckline and cuffs. The embroidery in rose point design is adorned with pearl beading. Beading and embroidery have stepped into favor as this season's successors to the lingerie touch of organdy or batiste.

• • •

IT MAKES no difference whether you wear your frock rightside or inside out so far as the fabric is concerned. Materials that are woven and knitted are given an interesting pattern on the reverse as well as the right side of the fabric. This makes possible many interesting trimming details and clever combinations of frocks and jackets.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

How many people getting $25 a week would work, if they found out that they had fallen heir to a million dollars, was asked the other day by a Boston church committee considering some of the details of unemployment?

It has been found out that very few are satisfied with their work. Dr. Harry D. Kitson, psychologist at Teachers' College, Columbia University, who has been making tests of this nature, said recently very few are satisfied with their work.

Among teachers the degree of maximum interest in their work is only 19 percent. Among nurses it is 33 percent.

The number of unemployed keeps many of the employed at their work partly contented, because they do not want to be without something to do, bringing in an income. But there is great dissatisfaction among those who work. The legacy of a million would see them drop their tools at once, no matter, if it were not the time to quit.

Urges Discontinuance of Master Point System

Editor Boston American:

Would you kindly consider the following in your section of Something to Think About, as it has been quite a question with some of my employed friends for some time:

In consistency of overproduction as countenanced by the Associated Industries of Massachusetts, a master point system adopted and perpetuated for all lines of production, operations are based on per man per hour basis. Did this system prove successful? Not according to the millions looking now for employment.

I ask you in all fairness to American workmen should a policy of this kind be continued to bring back the beloved confidence that some of our leading corporations are striving for. Point systems mean enormous turnovers, tendency more to incite ill feelings than to consolidate. Procure for the operator real abiding confidence in him so as to make his job more secure and productive and dismiss for all time the much overworked point systems which now governs too many of our leading manufacturers. Ease up on the overworked operators and cut down on the enormous overhead.

If American manufacturers would only adopt such a policy it would do much for cleanness and finesse and inspiration that could not be replaced. E. F. O.

Veteran Joins Plea for Cashing of Certificates

Editor Boston American:

I am a veteran of the World War and agree with that veteran who wrote in about the government cashing the certificates at once. I have drawn on my certificate and am paying 6 per cent annually. If this rate continues until 20 years are up, I will have very little to collect. I say cash them now and give the veterans what belongs to them in these hard times. I for one could use it to good advantage and would see that my family would have something more than we have now, being unemployed seven months. A veteran needs what is due him. Let the government cash the certificates at once. L. M. G.

Jury Service for Jobless Suggested

Editor Boston American:

Reading of the good work your paper is doing to help relieve unemployment I would like to offer a suggestion. We know there are a lot of men who have jobs that are being selected for jury service. A great many of these men would much rather give their time to their business, but being good citizens feel it is their duty to serve.

Why not have the jurors to be selected for the coming months be picked from a list of unemployed men. It would give relief to a lot of people to receive jurors' pay for a month.

From an unemployed daily reader. A. A. L.

Declares Police in On Boston Taxi Racket

Editor Boston American:

"Truth forever on the Scaffold wrong forever on the throne?"

The particular wrong I have in mind is the manner in which the taxi situation is carried on in Boston. Chicago and New York have their "rackets," Boston has here, one of the most infamous is the cab racket as conducted jointly by Boston police, low and high, and the Checker Cab Co. Apparently the Checker Taxi Co. has been granted the rights of kings! "The divine right to rule!" Regardless of whether others have a right to make a decent and humble honest living. Not only do they exercise a monoply of the best stands in the city, but as usual under police protection and supervision, they prohibit cabs of other companies, namely, I. T. O. A and other independents from passing along Dartmouth st., a public street, while trains carrying Harvard-Yale enthusiasts returning from the game are discharging their passengers at Back Bay station, so that the Checker can exercise their privilege of monopoly while the rest of the cabmen look on like impoverished dogs begging for the crumbs.

Thanks American for Aid in Beach Fight

Editor Boston American:

Your editorial of November 18, on my proposal to widen the Beach at Revere and create a "Playground of New England" worthy of the name, has focussed the public eye on the urgent need of improvement at this popular resort. It has awakened many people to the possibility of securing favorable legislation at the coming state session.

Over 200 citizens of Greater Boston have since told me by phone or in person that they favor some such plan and hope our efforts will be successful. I know of civic and fraternal orders among whose members the plan has since had a lot of favorable discussion.

Considering that Revere Beach is within a ten or 15 cent fare or easy auto distance of nearly two million people, the expense of this development would be fully justified in the interest of public safety, health, comfort and convenience. There is no other beach on the New England coast so richly endowed by nature with space for a major improvement, such as is embodied in my plan that is accessible to such masses of population.

The Commonwealth is building upwards of $9,000,000 of new roads for auto traffic. It is estimated that my plan can be completed for very little more than 10 per cent of this amount. Incidently my plan involves as its most expensive feature the construction of a new boulevard paralleling the present boulevard and 100 feet from it with parking space between the two for tens of thousands of cars.

Your editorial page has demonstrated its value as a means of arousing public interest. I thank you for the assistance you have given and know that when our good citizens fully realize the benefits that will accrue to them from a revamped Revere Beach they will join with me.

Country's Need of 5 Cent Glass of Beer Cited

Editor Boston American:

Now that we are in an economic "pickle," a little retrospection might make us wise for the future. I respectfully refer to the administrations of Calvin Coolidge.

He was a good American in that he kept free from foreign entanglements; but he was inducted into office by the light of an oil lamp and his conduct while in the presidential chair was, in some respects, just as backward. He pursued a policy of old fashioned tight-fistedness which prompted the people to "Hooverize" long after there was any necessity for it.

Many will remember how he aroused the ire of the hat manufacturers and distributors by sending his old felt hat to the cleaners. The people, of course, followed his example.

Now that the harm is done, he advises us through the press to spend our money freely.

This country is sadly lacking in active, courageous, far-sighted leadership in Washington, such as Mayor Curley is giving us in Boston.

As Thomas R. Marshall said about the cigar one time, what this country needs just now is a good 5c glass of beer.

HOOVER STAND SUITS LEAGUE

Geneva, Nov. 29 (AP)—League of Nations circles today hailed the decision of President Hoover to take the world court portocol to Congress at once for action which would permit the United States to adhere to the permanent court of international justice.

For some weeks observers here had been doubtful that the administration would undertake to push the protocol through the coming short session of Congress in view of pressing domestic responsibilities, but League supporters are deeply gratified at this evidence of the President's energetic interest in the move for adhesion.

The fight for ratification will be followed at the seat of the League in Geneva with great concern. It was felt here that the presence of Frank B. Kellogg, former secretary of state, on the world court bench would influence American opinion favorably toward the court.

League officials will seek to expedite ratification by a number of states which have not yet recorded their final approval of the United States adhesion protocol.

Cold Drives Hundreds to Bureau Seeking Jobs

(If you have an odd job to be done, or work for one or more men or women in office, store, factory or other business enterprise, call the Municipal Employment Bureau Liberty 8607, or mail the coupon to 25 Church st., Boston.)

Cold weather drove hundreds to the Municipal Employment Bureau seeking work yesterday. There were only two score jobs to be given out. It was a spiritless crowd, as if the extreme cold had sapped their courage as it spread misery wherever there are families whose heads are out of work.

Director John J. Shields appealed for jobs to aid these heads of families, whose dependants must go cold and hungry unless the people of Greater Boston lend them aid.

With so many charity appeals being made, he called attention to the fact that it is work these men and women are asking, and that whoever helps them helps himself by getting work done efficiently by trained and experienced workers.

ROOT GIVES HIS PEACE VIEWS

New York, Nov. 29 (AP)—Elihu Root believes civilization and world peace advance not at treaty tables, but in the hearts of men.

Speaking extemporaneously at the dedication of the new building of the Council of Foreign Relations yesterday, the former secretary of state said the promotion of disarmament was bound up with the elevation of the people's standards.

"No improvement comes by compulsion," he said, "no improvement comes merely by intellectual understanding. But we have got to get the same change in the standard of conduct which each man carries in his own breast and which has made a change from the recognition of private war into the recognition of judicial decisions."

In support of America's adherence to the world court, which he helped to found, he said:

"And now the tribunal has proved itself and by its work for the last nine or ten years has won universal confidence and respect, and the dream of half or a quarter century ago has now become a reality."

Society Folk Pay $10,000 for Rich Negro's Treasures

New York, Nov. 29 (AP)—A fortune in furnishings accumulated through the negro's desire to take the kink out of his hair, is passing to the folks that put the marcel wave on a paying basis.

On the first of a three-day auction to dispose of the $350,000 effects of the late Madame C. J. Walker, negro washerwoman who invented a hair-straightening tonic for her race and quit washing, $10,000 was netted—mostly from white society women.

A 12-piece, hand-carved mahogany bedroom suite brought $350, a Flemish oak billiard table $225, 10 high back arm chairs in the same wood $175 and luxurious Oriental rugs which Italian kings are said to have walked on, from $20 to $100.

Upwards of 1500 bargain hunters and sightseers thronged the mansion and grounds to view the Japanese prayer tree and to near the $25,000, 24-karat gold inlay organ. Few came to buy and most to gasp over the legendary treasures which had been closed to them in the owner's life.

Mme. Walker died in 1919, probably the wealthiest Negro woman in America. Mrs. Leila Walker Robinson, her daughter, recently decreed that the furnishings as well as the house, a show place at Irvington on the Hudson, should be sold at auction.

PRODUCERS RESORT TO STRATEGY

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

WHEN the grinning ogre of hard times first oppressed the theater, its generals began to devote desperate attention to the subject of grand strategy. The pressure of a shrinking box office demanded it. Curiously enough it was the Theater Guild that first abandoned what might have been termed local tactics and spread strategical operations over the entire front. More than two years ago this earnest group of dispensers in the arts brought forth the Subscription List.

* * *

Nicholas Young

IN THE MEANTIME the drama dropped from bad to worse, and from worse to even less than that. Yet the Theater Guild managed to survive the attacks of the enemy; it has even lived down the assaults of Manhattan's most voluble pundits, and still waxes strong as something exceedingly important in the matter of making plays that the public will purchase on its own terms. Whether this could have been accomplished without that strange innovation called the Subscription List is a subject which still upsets the learned judges—even confounds them. But the fact remains that when the Theater Guild starts major operations on any salient, it carries a reserve power of from 5000 to 10,000 loyal recruits, every one of which fairly aches to follow the banner to the last stronghold.

* * *

HOW SOUNDLY the strategists of the Theater Guild led their forces may be discovered in the more recent operations of the Opposition. For out of the popular Subscription List of two or three seasons ago has emerged the Professional Players in Boston and Philadelphia, as well as similar offensives in Chicago and other cities, all laid down on the same plan, but carrying another name. Playgoers in this region are now entering upon their third experience with the Messrs. Shubert's Professional Players, and the prospects are excellent. In another week the Theater Guild will take up its own burden with "Green Grow the Lilacs," at the Tremont, and, we are informed, the old Subscription List is still potent.

* * *

WHILE THESE MAJOR maneuvers are occupying the attention of the drama's chieftains, minor tactics are being practiced by enterprising lieutenants. With the shifting of "Street Scene" to the Majestic and the sudden movement of "The Blue Ghost" to the Shuberts' Lyric, it would seem that demonstrations on the flank are in order. How these will turn out may not at this moment be foreseen, but there is little doubt that "Street Scene" will find safe lodgement at the Majestic, where it should be a profitable tenant for another month—if not longer.

* * *

CONSIDERING THESE MOVEMENTS in their relative value to the man who pays, "Street Scene" should easily hold its position as the best entertainment in town. It is good, safe and sane drama for any playhouse. It touches life on many corners; it has the faculty of making the heart beat a little faster.

The Drama's Sun Shines Brilliantly When Twinkling Stars Are Brightest

FLORENCE REED

MISS REED is the star of "Purity," opening Monday night at the Plymouth in the Professional Players series. The actress, long a performer in New England, is a prime favorite.

JUNE WEBSTER AND BARBARA WILLISON

MISS WILLISON and Miss Webster perform in "Street Scene" which moves from the Wilbur to the Majestic Monday night. The play is like seeing a page from real life, with throbs and thrills.

AMALIE FASSNACHT

MISS FASSNACHT has the role of Mary in the great Freiburg Passion Play which comes Monday to the Boston Opera House. This is said to be the oldest continuing production in existence.

ELSIE MULLER

MISS MULLER is one of the classy Scollayettes who adorn the Scollay stage shows.

RETURNS TO HOME SOIL

Grandchild of the well-loved "Pop" Reed, colorful figure of the "good, old days" of the stage, daughter of Roland Reed, one of America's best known comedians in his day, it would have been almost impossible for Florence Reed to seek a career elsewhere than in the theater.

Miss Reed, who is the star of "Purity," new play from the pen of Rene Wachthausen, which opens at the Plymouth Monday night under the auspices of the Professional Players, made her debut in the theater as a monologist in New York in 1901. She was also feminine lead, with the Proctor Stock Co., and with the Malcolm Williams group in Worcester and the D. H. Hunt Co. in Chicago.

BOOK FARE IS 'DEEP STUFF' FOR STAR

By AL REED

Did you ever sit in a theater and let go of yourself so completely that you "lived" through the action of a play? It's a great game. I am moved to this extent in the theater very frequently. And I have been promising myself that one of these days when some actor or actress would come along and make a very deep impression upon me as some grotesque or fantastic type of character, I would endeavor to meet the actor or actress and see just how much the actual person might resemble my mental creation.

My opportunity came last week. My subject was the tough, "wisecracking" street gamin and flower girl of the Parisian boulevard cafes, Queenie Smith in "The Street Singer," at the Shubert. And she plays her part so genuinely, so convincingly that I felt that I could see her as one of my playmates as a youngster. She was a barefooted tomboy of the back lots and together we used to "swipe" potatoes, sweets if they were nearer the curb than the whites, from the corner vegetable stand, and then we would bake them in an open, roaring November bonfire.

Not since those days have I heard so many slangy wisecracks. They came from this little star so naturally that I said to myself: "Here is where I am going back to those good old carefree days where there was no crucifying stock market, no late nights with subsequent headaching mornings."

I went to call on Miss Smith, the real Queenie Smith, magnetic star of half a dozen musical successes and one time partner of Jack Donahue. I found her reading the "Rise of American Civilization," with Clark's "European Theories of the Drama," LeGallienne's "Anthology of American Verse" and the Oxford "Book of English Verse," among others close by.

Then I realized Miss Smith is a great actress, for her real self is as far apart from her stage character as are the two Poles.

LIFE OF CHRIST BASIS FOR 'PLAY THAT BUILT A CITY'

The Freiburg Passion Play, opening at the Boston Opera House, Monday, as a religious appeal for the lifting of the plague which ravaged Europe in those days, according to Adolf Fassnacht, world famous Christus portrayer and manager of the Freiburg Company in America.

Elsa Fassnacht

The authentic records of Freiburg, although they lend some color to tradition, do not make it conclusive. The church records, which are the principal source of reliable information regarding the middle ages, indicate that the Play was begun in a very simple way as a means of imparting religious instruction. The dates of the early presentations are on record and religiously guarded.

With Mr. Fassnacht come some two score Freiburgers, including Elsa and Amelia Fassnacht, who have devoted much of their lives to presenting the picturesque spectacle of the Passion of Jesus. To understand these players and their mission one has but to recall the melancholy traditions of the Black Forest and of the years of study and application given to the Passion Play by the foremost artists of Germany.

In the year 1264, when the first Passion Play was produced in Freiburg, that place was just another hamlet in the depths of the Black Forest. The play might well be known as the "play that built a city," for Freiburg is now a city of 200,000 souls, a cultural center, and home of the University of Freiburg. Medical men of the whole world go to Freiburg to complete their education. The law school of Freiburg is but slightly less renowned. In the fine arts Freiburg stands high. The quaint city wears its mantle of 700 years of tradition with a quiet dignity, and sends to the world skilled surgeons, famous legal men and finished artists.

Because of its close contact with Passion Play and the many traditions surrounding it, the University of Freiburg has long excelled in music and drama and their related arts.

It is well to remember in thinking of the Freiburg Players that they are not villagers of an isolated Black Forest hamlet, but finished artists, accomplished musicians highly skilled technicians, and actors born of generations of actors, schooled in the traditions of the stage as well as in the traditions of the Passion Play.

GIESEKING IS SYMPHONY SOLOIST

By MOSES SMITH

Soloists are rare birds nowadays at the concerts of the Boston Symphony Orchestra — soloists, that is, of distinguished names, intended to bolster up the drawing power of the purely symphonic program. Serge Koussevitzky has succeeded notably in selling symphonic music to audiences on its own merits.

It is fortunate, however, that Walter Gieseking, extraordinary pianist, is the assisting artist at this week's concerts, for without him they would prove very tame. Playing the Beethoven E-flat major Concerto, Gieseking exhibited again at yesterday's matinee the superlative artistry which has elicited such lavish praises during the past three or four seasons. The fire and storm, the exquisitely attuned lyricism, the rare moments of virtuosity, the noble, classic restraint—all these things were present in a performance that could probably not be matched in the world today. The orchestral accompaniment, sympathetic in most respects, was inclined to be ragged at times. It did not approach the perfection attained at the time of Gieseking's first appearance with the orchestra several years ago.

The Concerto was preceded by the Second "Romantic" Symphony of Howard Hanson, American composer, director of the Eastman of Music at Rochester. Composed for the fiftieth anniversary of the Boston Orchestra and played yesterday for the first time this symphony made on this writer the impression of a series of fragments with no central, unifying force, most of them uninteresting and unoriginal in character. Occasional moments of quiet beauty, as at the end of the first movement, did not seem to atone for second-hand Strauss of "Till Eulenspiegel" or Debusseyan impressionism. Perhaps the work will sound better at second hearing.

A stirring performance of Wagner's Overture to "The Flying Dutchman" and a slow-paced rendering of Ravel's "Bolero" began and ended the concert.

BESSIE LOVE

MISS LOVE does fine work in "See America Thirst" now on the screen at the Park.

JUST ONE FOR WHOLE SHOW

For the first time in two years Ruth Draper will return to Boston on Monday to play a week's engagement at the Wilbur. Miss Draper will be heard in three different arrangements of her internationally known character sketches. For the first three days of the week the program will be composed of a mixture of old and new material, as follows: "Opening a Bazaar" (new), "A Dalmatian Peasant in the Hall of a New York Hospital," "Three Women and Mr. Clifford" (new), "Doctors," and "A Miner's Wife" (new).

Beginning Thursday evening, the program will include "Three Breakfasts," "Three Generations at the Court of Domestic Relations," "Three Women and Mr. Clifford."

PAINTS THE CLOUDS TO WOO JOY

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

GRACE MOORE HAS found a way to chase off the blues. Let love do the trick for you. That about sums up her recipe. She says it is sure-fire with herself. She hastens to explain she does not limit the "love" to human beings, but broadens the term to include anything you happen to treasure deeply. She suggests a favorite book, or some bosky dell, or a nook in some art gallery.

* * *

Grace Moore

MISS MOORE is a new star in the movie firmament. She triumphs in her first film, which will be seen at Loew's Orpheum, beginning Monday. Its title is "A Lady's Morals," which doesn't at all suggest the delectable entertainment the picture holds. The story is culled chiefly from the life of Jenny Lind, the "Swedish Nightingale"; Miss Moore does a splendid job of acting, and proves herself a genuine screen personality.

* * *

THUS IN AN interview, one is not surprised to learn that she places much stress upon the value of will power. She thinks Shakespeare was about right when he said the mind was its own place, and in itself could make a heaven of hell, a hell of heaven. And whether we are "schizoid" or "cycloid" or any other "oid" in the psychiatrist's listing of our oddities, we can snap out of it by use of will, plus something that we love deeply. Miss Moore goes on to say:

* * *

"WORRIES OF COURSE fall upon us at times. Some worry more than others. I have my troubles; what artist hasn't. You can't build your fame up from church singer to Metropolitan Opera Company prima donna without having problems, and many of them. But I never let them bother me too much. Further, I never pass my trials along to my friends. I don't confide them to anybody. My method is this: When worry starts in, I marshal a battalion of will power units. Then, in my brain, the battle begins. And if will power fails, I lay down a barrage, followed by a counter-attack.

* * *

"EACH AND EVERY ONE of us has a hobby, has something we love deeply. It may be a jewel, or a painting. It may be almost anything. Whatever it be, summon it to your aid, and it will come with the momentum of a Blucher saving the day at Waterloo. Think of this thing you love, admire it, and admire it some more; keep your mind upon it, and you will be astonished at the ease with which you win the victory over the blues. Thus you can paint the darkest clouds with sunshine. One such experience makes the second easier still; and the third, yet easier, and so on. After a while your troubles will pack themselves up in your old kit bag and you can smile, smile, smile. Now try my suggestion the next time you're worried."

* * *

"A LADY'S MORALS will remain on screen at the Orpheum through Thursday night. Next Friday this theater will change its bill.

Beauty Brightens the Corner

CONSTANCE BENNETT AND KENNETH MacKENNA

MISS BENNETT would gladden the heart of anyone. She and Mr. MacKenna shine in the RKO Keith feature picture, "Sin Takes a Holiday," held over for the second week.

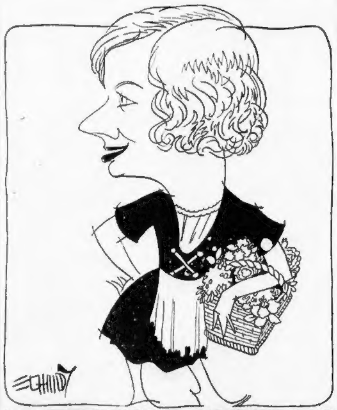
The New Plays

BOSTON OPERA HOUSE—The Freiburg Passion Play (in German) under the auspices of the very worthy Christopher Shop. Presentation of the life of Christ as it has been done through succeeding generations of the Fassnacht family of actors for more than 600 years. Local voices to the number of 300 in the ensembles, including the McDowell Club, members of the Handel and Haydn Society and students from the Curry School of Expression and Emerson College.

* * *

PLYMOUTH—Florence Reed in "Purity," third of the Professional Players' presentation. The story of a lonely woman of 50 and some rather unexpected developments in her life. Included in the supporting cast are Richard Bird, Malcolm Williams, Maude Odell, Marcella Swanson, Pearl Ramoy, Loretta Shea and Frank Horton. Staged by Stanley Logan.

Charmingly Cute and Clever



QUEENIE SMITH

MISS SMITH is small but brims over with pep and ability. Her beauty and talent make her an invaluable asset to "The Street Singer. (Shubert). Sketch is by Charles Schmidt.

Plays Remaining

Queenie Smith in "The Street Singer" at the Shubert. (Second week.) Exactly what this old Yankee town needs for pre-holiday entertainment. Filled to the brim with rich comedy, spirited tunes and a dancing ensemble that would take first money in any endurance contest. The last week.

* * *

"Street Scene," moving from the Wilbur to the Majestic. (Fifth week.) An absorbing chapter in the lives of some selected city dwellers. Romance, tragedy and fun. Everybody in trouble except the policeman on the beat and he has his moments.

* * *

"The Blue Ghost," moving from the Majestic to the Lyric. (Fourth week.) The press agent is strictly honest when he announces this as the greatest display of goblins, ghosts and ghouls ever gathered into a mystery play. No audience can keep quiet—at least, none ever does.

Love Makes Old Sol Grow Glad

SCREEN 'RIVAL' ANGERS THE GRETA GARBO FANS

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor

Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service, Inc.

Los Angeles, Nov. 29—Greta Garbo's fans, incensed over what they call Marlene Dietrich's imitation of their favorite, are registering violent protests. In view of this it is interesting to know that Greta Garbo goes serenely on her way secure in the knowledge of having definitely arrived. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is pretty sure that their Swedish star will not be dislodged from her niche.

Louella Parsons

They have just purchased "Grand Hotel" for her. It is one of New York's stage hits, and is a translation of a German play by Herman Shumlin and it has Garbo possibilities. There is this difference between Garbo and Dietrich. Garbo was a natural, she was cast first in "Temptress," without any advance billing or exploitation. The fans found her. The film company found Dietrich, and are presenting her to the fans. Whether the psychological effect of this will be harmful, we cannot say. It is unfortunate for Dietrich that she dresses so much like Garbo and affects so many of her mannerisms. The next picture will tell whether or not she will be as good as she was in "Morocco."

* * *

Do you know Roland Brown? Maybe not. Anyway, he wrote "The Doorway to Hell," for the Warner Brothers. "The Doorway to Hell" is the picture that raised Archie Mayo, the director, from the doubtful class to the white-haired boy at Warners. He, Mr. Brown, not Archie Mayo, has been signed to write an original for El Brendel. I hope he makes El Brendel a Swede, for the only time I ever lost interest in El was when he made a speech and forgot his Swedish accent. I was that disillusioned and so was the audience. Fox should make a rule to keep El Brendell in character, just as they shrouded Theda Bara in mystery. We, the motion picture public, like to keep our illusions.

* * *

I am never really prejudiced about directors. Naturally I have my favorites and I think some directors are better for one thing than others, but I have to admit I think the choice of Eddie Sutherland to direct "June Moon" is an inspiration. What Eddie can do to that picture is nobody's business. Jack Oakie is to have Frances Dee and Jean Arthur as his leading ladies. The crabby older sister, who cheated on her husband and finally got found out, has not been chosen. I wish they could bring out the girl who played the part in the stage show. She was grand. I have forgotten her name, but she did an admirable piece of work.

MRS. JOE E BROWN and MRS. FRANK JOYCE, both wearing green, lunching at the same place. MATT MOORE, CHARLIE LEDERER, BARNEY GLAZER and EDWIN KNOPE playing a few practical jokes at the bachelors' table. HOBART HENLEY and his mother sampling some of SAM HOLLAND'S corned beef and cabbage. MICKEY NEILAN true to his Irish traditions, enjoying some of the same delicacy. PATSY RUTH MILLER in a smart sports suit in the lobby of the Roosevelt Hotel. SID GRAUMAN and CHARLIE CHAPLIN discussing events of importance at the same place. HARRY BRAND fighting an appendix operation. That's all today.

FISH ARE ALL IN THE SWIM

Millions and millions of "extra" players, probably the largest number ever used in any picture, appear in "The Silver Horde," now showing at the RKO Keith-Boston. A conservative estimate places the number at 40,000,000! There is no way of making an accurate count, however, for most of them were salmon swimming up Alaskan rivers to spawn.

The salmon, which were photographed both from above and below surface of the rivers, provide a "supporting cast" for Evelyn Brent, Louis Wolheim, Joel McCrea, Raymond Hatton, Jean Arthur, Gavin Gordon and Blanche Sweet.

FIFTY YEARS LOPPED OFF

By HARRIS MORGAN

TAKING TIME BY the forelock, Director David Butler tries to put a few over on the Old Fellow with the scythe, in "Just Imagine," melange of melody and mirth and clever backgrounds, now at the Uptown and Washington St. Olympia. The film peers 50 years in the future. It is 1980, when flappers and sheiks may be expected to be gray and bent unless the Fountain of Youth shall have been discovered, and its waters be common enough to be used for "chasers." Mr. Butler does a good job at direction, and some of his sets are fascinatingly bizarre.

The chief value of the picture is of course the fun. El Brendel, perhaps just finished celebrating his golden wedding anniversary, seems peppy despite the imagined lapse of time. He does his bravest to be comic and pleasing, and succeeds to a great extent. The story is not vitally important; there is a romance, carried on by John Garrick and the fetching Maureen O'Sullivan, remembered for appearance in "Song o' My Heart." Some of the others in the cast are Marjorie White, Frank Albertson, Hobart Bosworth, Kenneth Thompson and Ivan Linow.

Inventions real and imaginary give the director ample room to indulge his far-seeing mind's eye, to his heart's content. "Just Imagine" certainly does bristle with novel ideas, and the camera sets them forth in interesting manner.

The film is a musical; some of the songs are good, and some are just so-so.

Real Life Lawyer Is Now Screen Barrister

Harry Green is an ambitious attorney in Jack Oakie's starring picture, "Sea Legs," now showing at the Modern and Beacon. Green deals in a humorous vein with a profession at which he once worked seriously. Green was graduated in law from New York University and practiced for a time before going on the stage.

Mutual Burlesque Shows

Gayety

La Villa Maye

La Villa Maye, the original Whoopee Girl, will be the feature attraction next week at the Gayety. The famous singer and dancer has a new line of songs and dances. She will be in addition to the full cast of Al Golden's "Laffin Thru," and will appear at every performance. "Laffin' Thru" is well-known to burlesque fans. It has always been a good show, and has been completely made over this year so that nothing remains of the original show except the name—and the name of the producer which in itself is enough to guarantee a spritely show. Golden himself will be the featured star.

Betty Duval, the Delmar Sisters, Bert Carr, Happy Hyatt, Abe Sherr, Miles and Malcolm Alice Woods and Snookie Woods are stars.

Howard

Doris Birmingham

A lively burlesque attraction known as the "Radium Queens" will be the top card at the Old Howard beginning Monday matinee. Among the favorites will be Doris Birmingham, Benny "Wop" Moore, Lew Lewis, the famous Perry Twins and Taris are big stars, Gaby Fields, Dolly Davis and Syd Burke are other bright lights. The show abounds in novelties. It is highly modern in every detail and the singing chorus is rated high in the realm of burlesque. The usual midnight performance will be presented on Friday night. In addition to the burlesque, the management will provide vaudeville and pictures. The films will present Rex Ingram's "Three Passions," with Alice Terry and "Children of Pleasure." On stage are the Kader Four, aerial workers; The Black Cat Four, singers and dancers, and the Jack Hughes Musical Duo.

"Outward Bound" the Fenway's Feature Film

"Outward Bound" is the feature at the Fenway. This is a screen adaptation of a stage success. In it are featured Leslie Howard, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Helen Chandler, Beryl Mercer, Alec B. Francis, Alison Shipworth, Lyonel Watts.

POVERTY PARTS VET AND CHILD AT YULETIDE

Do you remember when you were seven what a wonderful day was Christmas? How eagerly you looked forward to it—the tales of Santa that were told you by father and mother after supper in a nice, warm room?

And now, while you are recalling those dear days, give a thought to Bernadette who, each year until her seventh, awaited the coming of the great day with childish faith that Santa Claus would come to her house.

This year Bernadette cannot dream of Christmas like other little girls. She is in a charitable home—placed there by her father, a disabled veteran of the World War, who has been without work for many months.

YOU COULD HELP

Her mother, who has not yet recovered from a serious illness, wants her baby at home for Christmas, but if help does not come very soon she and her husband may be evicted from the room which is home to them.

In her weakened condition Bernadette's mother could not give the child proper care. Her father, a bright, clean young man of 31, walks the streets all day and most of the night looking for work.

At last the young couple decided that their little girl would receive better care in a charitable home. A lonely place for a chid on Christmas Day. A lonely day for her father and mother sitting in a cheerless room.

THEIR BIG WISH

The mother has only a summer coat to protect her from the cold. The father tries bravely to appear neat in a well-worn suit and shabby coat. But they would gladly go without such things if only Bernadette could be at home for Christmas.

If you want to help them, write or visit the Helping Hand Department of the Boston Evening American and refer to Case 65.

Here are some other appeals made to the Helping Hand today:

MOTHER OF 5 IN NEED
(Refer to Case 66)

We read your most valued paper and see the good you are doing for others so I thought I might ask if you could help us. I have five children. The oldest is 14 years and the youngest a baby four months. Three girls and two boys. My husband has been out of work for eight months. I need clothes for the children badly. The boys have no heavy underwear. If you know of any one wanting a man to work, my husband is a chauffeur, but will do any work.

The girls are five, three and four months. The boys are 14, 13. My husband needs shoes size seven.

This woman lives in Roxbury. Anyone wishing to aid may call the Boston Evening American Helping Hand, Liberty 4000, and refer to Case 66.

VETERAN SUFFERING
(Refer to Case 67)

I have been requested to report to the Naval Hospital as a war veteran for treatment. Cannot do so, as I have no clothes. My 80-year-old mother and my two motherless sons are in need of food, fuel and clothing, and while they can suffer, so can I. When I am assured of their need being tended to clothes or no clothes, I will report to the hospital for medical and surgical treatment.

If you as a helping hand organization can aid us, please do so and blessings will be prayed for you.

Money or anything else will be greatly appreciated.

This man lives in Wilmington. Anyone wishing to investigate this case may learn the address by calling the Boston Evening American Helping Hand, Liberty 4000, and asking for Case 67.

MOTHER IS DESPERATE
(Refer to Case 68)

I wonder if you could help me. My husband is out of work and the children are badly in need of clothes and shoes. There are three children, Ruthie, 8; Freddie [illegible] Edna, 3. They all need shoes, their sizes are, 12½, 10 and 6. They also need underwear. It would be very much appreciated if you could help me. If my husband doesn't get work soon I don't know what I shall do. Hoping you will answer soon and won't forget me.

I also need dresses, size 38.

This woman lives in South Boston. Anybody wishing to aid may call the Boston Evening American Helping Hand, Liberty 000, and refer to Case 68.

CRIPPLE IN NEED
(Refer to Case 69)

I would be grateful to anyone who would give me an overcoat or food, or clothes of any kind. I have been laid up for the past two years. I went under several operations only to be left crippled for life. The only pleasure I have to look forward to is to get out doors, for fresh air. I have a family with but a small allowance to keep them. I hope some kind person will help me. Thanking the Boston Evening American for the great good it is doing to those who are unfortunate and in need.

This family lives in Roxbury. Anyone wishing to aid may call the Boston Evening American Helping Hand, Liberty 4000, and refer to Case 69.

Family of Three Meet Death in Shooting

MARIE TARLO. MRS. TARLO. ALFRED TARLO.

BELIEVED CRAZED by worries caused by a failing business, Alfred Tarlo, Philadelphia interior decorator, shot and killed his wife and daughter at their home and then took his own life. The three bodies were found in the house by neighbors who forced an entrance after hearing the shots. This picture of the Tarlo family was taken about a month ago on the boardwalk at Atlantic City. Heart Gripping Appeals Flood Xmas Basket Editor

Heart gripping notes in the scrawling handwriting of little children, letters penned by mothers terrified with the prospect of a winter of privation and suffering, letters written by fathers requesting only that they be furnished with enough work to provide their families with food and clothing.

Notes and letters piling higher and higher on the desk of the editor of the Helping Hand Department of the Christmas Basket Fund. Each ine carrying a plea for food and clothing—the bare necessities of life.

GUS GIVES $500

Each one different in detail, but carrying the same message of distress—"We need food—the children have no winter clothes—my husband has not worked for months—"

Goodfellows all over New England are helping—with their donations—to keep pace with these pathetic appeals. Today the greatest single contribution yet received came into the fund. Paul Bowser's wrestling show on Thanksgiving night brought $2659.69.

And Gus Sonnenberg, wrestling champion of the world, gave $500 of his share outright to the Basket Fund. You wrestling fans who watched Gus that night struggling to retain his crown against Jack Sherry probably did not know that he got out of a sick bed to help meet the ever increasing appeals to the Christmas Basket Fund.

SHERRY DONATES $250

Jack Sherry his gallant opponent, wrote a check for $250 and sent it to the Basket Fund editor. Good sportsmen both—and Goodfellows who will wake on Christmas morning with the realization that some measure of comfort has come to a needy family through their splendid responses.

"God loveth a cheerful giver." And the prayers of those needy souls befriended by Goodfellows are the greatest gifts that Christmas can bring.

The Christmas Basket Fund supplementing, this year, the Boston Evening American's Helping Hand Department, is daily receiving hundreds of pleas for substantial food and warm clothing. If your donation can be only a small one—do not hesitate. MAIL IT TODAY.

Wright, 80, Noted Opera Tenor, Dies

Bridgewater, Nov. 29 (AP)—Thomas Wright, 80, noted light opera tenor soloist of half a century ago, died at the home of a nephew, T. E. L. Kemp, here last night. Wright was one of the first employes of B. F. Keith. He sang in a number of Gilbert and Sullivan operettas and was for a time with Lew Dockstader and other minstrels.

German Censors Approve War Film

Berlin, Nov. 29 (AP)—Despite a protest by the defense ministry, the American cinema, "All Quiet on the Western Front" has been approved for display in Germany by censorship board. Its premier will occur Dec. 4.

Lawyer Wins Race to Halt Deportation

A wild automobile ride from New York to Boston to save a man from deportation ended successfully at Commonwealth pier today when the motorship Saturnia docked to take on passengers for Italy. Five minutes after the Saturnia departed from New York with 900 passengers and 20 deportees, one of them Pasquale Giofre, counsel for Giofre obtained a writ of habeas corpus preventing deportation. Armed with the writ Gaspare Casimano raced to Boston and after appearing in the United States court succeeded in having his client taken off the ship.

Pilsudski Quits; Slawek Is Premier

Warsaw, Poland, Nov. 29 (AP)—Marshal Pilsudski today stepped back behind the scenes to stage manage the Polish government, abandoning his post of actual direction to Col. Walery Slawek, former premier. His partisans having won a parliamentary victory, which will insure his program being carried out, the marshal dictator saw no further need for remaining in active charge. He resigned the premiership to resume his former role of guiding hand.

Train Robbers Get $6000 in Package

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 29 (AP)—Swinging to an express car on a Southern Railway train bound for Selma two unidentified men today held up the express clerk on the car and escaped with a package which police were told contained $6000 in currency.

Youth Shot by Chum

Kennebunkport, Me., Nov. 29 (AP)—Julian Johnson, 14, was brought to a hospital here today in a serious condition from a wound in his back inflicted by a bullet accidentally discharged from a young hunting companion's gun.

QUEEN MARIE TO LIVE IN EXILE

Vienna, Nov 29 (AP)—Reports here are that Queen Marie of Rumania, harried by her headstrong son, King Carol, will take up a semi-permanent residence in Paris when she goes there soon.

Information here is that the Dowager Queen and her son are at greater odds than ever, and that the atmosphere in Bucharest since his spectacular return from exile to take the throne held by his son, Michael, has had a bad effect on her health.

One report current here is that Carol has been planning an edict which would prevent his mother and Queen Helen from attending or organizing public functions and would make them take up abodes assigned to them by Carol.

Another report heard here is that Mme. Magda Lupescu, with whom Carol lived while in exile, has been installed at the palace in Bucharest.

Washington, Nov. 29 (AP)—The Rumanian legation today denied a report that Mme. Lupescu was living in the royal palace at Bucharest. The legation stated Mme. Lupescu is not and has not been in Rumania since the arrival of the King last June.

Consistory to Name No Cardinals Yet

Vatican City, Nov. 29 (AP)—Pope Pius may call a consistory soon, but it will be solely for the purpose of creating bishops and archbishops and not cardinals, it was learned today. The Pontiff may make an allocution at this consistory and there is much interest in this possibility since it is believed he will discuss world peace and disarmament.

PEASANT HAPPY IN RUSSIA WITH BARE LIVING

(In the first article of a series of three, of which this is the second, Russia's abundance of work and lack of workers was explained. This article reveals the mental attitude of the Russian peasant, gleaned from an interview when the country came to town to celebrate the 13th anniversary of the Red revolution.)

Moscow, Nov. 28—What does a man need in America to be happy? A wife, several children perhaps a comfortable home, good, steady income and a roast on Sunday, a few holidays, an automobile, a couple of the best shows a year? That's striking an average.

What does a Russian peasant need to be happy? Examine one and his mental attitude towards his surroundings and his government.

Piotr Glebovich Yorkov is a peasant. Piotr Glebovich Yorkov is also a personality. He came in to Moscow from Bronitz, his native village, to sing for the celebration of the 13th anniversary of the Red revolution. With a big bundle of honey from his own beehive in the crook of his arm, he went calling on an old American comrade.

CONDITIONS GOOD

I met him, heard his native song, his opinions on life, the revolution and the peasants. Piotr looks like a peasant out of the Chauve Souris or from the choirs of Boris Gudonuff. His curly gray hair is cut straight, soup-bowl fashion; his gray beard and mustache are, in a word, magnificent. His face is a saint's face, with rosy cheeks, finely chiseled brows and candid blue eyes. He is 58 years old and has three grown children and several grandchildren.

He sits with me on the sofa near the tea table and talks earnestly, his legs encased in soft black leather boots reaching to his knees. He flourishes a dark cap that looks like a marine officer's. His dark blue coat is worn with a jaunty air, though it is frayed at the cuffs.

I inquire politely:

"How are things in your part of the country, Piotr Gebovich?"

He answers glibly, showing two rows of teeth even and white as a young man's.

"Not bad, not bad at all. We've had a good deal of collectivization (grouping of farms) but not so much of late."

"Have you a good house for yourself and your family?"

GOOD HARVEST

"Grand, my wife is charming. My children, three of them, are grown up and I have many smiling grandchildren. A good house too. You must come to see me when the snow is on the ground. It is only 30 miles from here."

"And how is the food in Bronitz this year?" I pursue this interest.

"Excellent, thank you. We have good bread from a good harvest—almost white—and there is plenty of sugar besides.

I ask about meat, which has been declared a touchy problem. He says:

"We get along. We've never had much meat in our village. What with bread and butter and potatoes and sugar—isn't that enough for anyone?"

He spreads a huge slice of bread with butter, washing it down with tea. Finding that another Russian "prefers not to ask" whether Piotr is a materialist, I finally word the question. Piotr looks straight at me, a man with the face of a saint, owning that he is a "Godless one."

"I am an atheist, if that's what you mean, as any sensible man is. It was not the revolution. As a young man I came to believe there is no God. I read the Bible, then and went to church, too. The 'Bible is not a bad book,' it has pretty stories, but it is not the truth."

(The last article Monday deals with birth control in Russia.)

British Labor Split Aids Conservatives

East Renfrew, Scotland, Nov. 29 (AP)—The conservatives retained the East Renfrew seat in a by-election today which returned the Marquis of Douglas and Clydesdale a victor over Bailie Irwin, Independent, whose endorsement by Scottish Laborites was regarded as widening the breach in the labor ranks.

Race Track Bets Taxed

Sydney, Australia, Nov. 29 (AP)—The state labor office today agreed to a 10 per cent tax on all winning race track bets. It is estimated that the measure will yield $10,000,000 a year.

DIVIDEND ON HEARST STOCK DECLARED

San Francisco, Nov. 29—Regular dividend on the 7 per cent participating Class A stock of Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc., was declared today by the board of directors. This dividend amounts to 1¾ per cent, or at the rate of 7 per cent annually. At the same time the regular dividend of 43¾ cents a share was declared on the common stock of the company.

The books will be closed on December 1, and checks will be mailed to reach stockholders on the 15th.

As the 7 per cent participating Class A stock is widely held by individuals in all parts of the United States, this action of the board of directors will make available just before Christmas to a widely scattered group, a considerable sum of money.

SECOND DIVIDEND.

It is the second dividend to be paid on this stock, as Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc., was formed in the early part of 1930, to take over and consolidate 10 of the largest and most profitable of the daily newspapers controlled by William Randolph Hearst.

In addition, the group includes the American News Print Co. and the American Weekly, a Sunday magazine section, with the greatest circulation of any periodical in the world.

At the time of incorporation a plan of customer-employe ownership, through the 7 per cent participating stock, was decided upon, and following that plan this issue was offered to the public through the various newspaper enterprises of Mr. Hearst in all parts of the United States.

BIG BLOCKS BOUGHT

Knowing the history of successful and profitable operations of these newspapers, the public was quick to acclaim this plan and to subscribe for the stock in large blocks.

The small investor, however, who desired to create a fund for himself by investing small amounts regularly in a company with whose history he was familiar, was not provided for. In September, therefore, the board of directors agreed to allow those who so desired to purchase the 7 per cent stock on the partial payment plan. This action, according to officials of the company, has served not only to increase tremendously the number of stockholders, but to encourage the salaried man to save a portion of his salary regularly and thus build for himself a reserve fund.

EARNINGS HOLD UP

While the earnings report for 1930 will not be available until after the turn of the year, it is indicated that net this year is holding up well despite generally quiet conditions in many lines of industry.

Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc., has maintained a steady record of profits which for the last four years has shown an average of over $11,000,000 earned annually, or 3.14 times the dividend requirements on the full amount of 7 per cent participating class A stock to be presently outstanding.

In 1929 the total gross circulation and advertising revenue amounted to over $83,000,000 and over 143,000,000 lines of advertising were carried during the 12 months.

Wood Is Re-elected Head of Auto Club

The Boston Automobile Club at its annual election unanimously re-elected Allen H. Wood president. Wood is also the president of Wood, Putnam & Wood, one of New England's oldest advertising agencies and a man long active on the board of governors of the Boston Automobile Club.

Robert T. Bushnell, district attorney of Middlesex County, was elected to the office of vice-president. Bradbury Cushing, manager of the Statler Hotel, was unanimously elected treasurer and William Fisher, former city traffic commissioner, unanimously elected secretary.

The executive committee will consist of Wood, Fisher and Cushing and Chester I. Campbell and Eben S. Draper.

Detective Takes Up Kaufman Hunt

Jackman, Me., Nov. 29—A new angle in the Kaufman search came when a representative of an international detective agency was called in by friends and the family of the missing Mitchell B. Kaufman.

Operatives from the same agency have already worked on the strange disappearance case. This detective, however, has a peculiar knowledge of this part of the country and its people.

Man, Strange Man

His dreams, his passion for flying, and the lady with the powerful toes.

YOU MIGHT HAVE BEEN LIKE THIS

In trees partly decayed, you may see flying squirrels, that live in tree holes and fly, or float, from one tree to another, spreading out their legs, which are united by a film, forming wings of a tiny airplane.

We humans might have been like that. The great scientist, Prof. Thevenet, says so, and he knows. In this picture you see how you and the rest of us might have looked and lived had evolution turned in a different direction. The American Weekly, part of the BOSTON SUNDAY ADVERTISER, tomorrow, tells all about it.

Man has always had a passionate desire to fly. How often you have dreamed of flying. More than 2000 years ago, Virgil, in his "Aeneid," wrote about it thus:

Daedalus, ut fama est, fugions minoia regna, etc.

STRANGE DREAMS THAT VISIT US

In dreams, we fly. In dreams, thoughts travel where they will, bringing us nightmares, or delights far above real life. Science tells you that thoughts pushed aside by day, our "inhibitions," come crowding to the front in sleep.

Dreams have played an important part in history.

The great Pharaoh, dreaming about seven fat cows and seven thin cows, gave intelligent Joseph the opportunity to run successfully the biggest grain corner in the world's history.

TWO TOES, MOST WONDERFUL ON EARTH

And from airy, fairy dreams how easily we turn to the fairy-like creature whose powerful big toes hold a world record.

The two most powerful big toes in the world are concrete—real. The lady standing on one toe, none other than Mlle. Floris, Viennese ballet dancer, danced on the points of her two big toes for 182 minutes without stopping.

When it was over this lady had won the world's toe dancing endurance championship and had every right to quote the good book: I will praise the Lord, for I am fearfully, and wonderfully made."

This is to remind you that everything fearful, wonderful, scientific, important, strange, and, above all, instructive, may be found, week after week, in the American Weekly.

That supreme publication is distributed with the Hearst Sunday newspapers to 6,000,000 American families each week.

Coral Asks Wilda to Birthday Party

HOW THE STORY STARTS

Wilda Gardner, bookkeeper in a hardware store, is in love with Logan Townsend, who "has not spoken yet."

He is no Adonis, Wilda thinks, but he has a rare smile. This smile also attracts Bess Avery, a stenographer in an office near Logan's. Wilda's mother, Garcie, has been strangely distracted since the father died. He is understood to have left much money and she plans to leave the poor little cottage in which they live in Boston and get in touch with a gaier life. A trip to Europe is suggested and Logan is told of the inheritance.

By MAY CHRISTIE

(Copyright, 1930.)

"HEAVENS, girl, aren't you thrilled? If it were me I'd be tickled to death."

And Coral removed her hat—a pert little thing with cherries dangling at one side—and fanned herself.

"Whew! Isn't it hot? Imagine you bounding over the breezeful ocean!"

"My imagination hasn't got that far. I don't quit Schentzel's till Saturday evening."

"An' you ain't comin' back no more?" chanted Miss Coral.

"Not for a while. Mother's idea is to spend three months, anyway, traveling around Europe. She's crazy to see the Riviera."

"And make whoopee! And how I can picture you at it."

To her astonishment—or was it her imagination?—there came a glint of tears in Wilda's eyes.

Not So Thrilling

We Know Nobody

"Oh, I don't know as it'll be so thrilling. We— neither of us know a soul on the other side of the ocean."

"Bless your heart, old scarecat, that'll soon be remedied."

"I'd rather stay home with my friends this summer. If it weren't that mother has her heart on this trip, I'd back out of it this very minute."

"Aw, don't be foolish. You'll have the time of your young life. Maybe you'll grab off a title!"

"Americans are good enough for me."

"Applause! That being so, will you come to my birthday party on Saturday evening?"

"Oh Coral, is it so soon? Of course I'll come."

"Festivities from 8:30 on. Dancing indoors . . . flirting under the greenwood boughs . . . a hammock dangling from the old elm especially reserved for you and Logan Townsend."

So "he" was coming, too? Wilda turned her head quickly aside so that her friend might not observe the blush that flew to her very forehead.

"Who else is coming to the party, Coral?"

Wilda contrived to get the words out nonchalantly.

Had her shrewd friend guessed the warm upsurge of emotion that she felt for Logan Townsend?

Hide the feeling. No one—not even the tried and trusted Coral—should get a glimpse of her real heart.

"Oh, the usual crowd."

"How many?"

"I guess there'll be 20 or so. You know the way it is at our place. Friends' friends 'll roll in."

The hospitality of the Dennis home was known. And Coral's bright good humor was always a magnet.

Nothing to Her

Now He Talks to Myrtle

"Myrtle Gleeson coming?" Wilda tried to make the querry casual, but Coral was too smart for her.

"Your high-hat rival? Yes, I couldn't avoid asking her. But nothing to fear in that quarter, old dear. With that idiotic drawl of hers and her senseless poses, the men soon see through her."

Wilda colored. "You jump to such conclusions, Coral."

"Not I. It's plain as a pikestaff that Logan Townsend thinks you're a little wonder, and is wild about you. If he ever talks to Myrtle, it's because she throws herself at him, body and soul, and he's too

Springfield Legion Backs Col. Blake

PROPOSAL TO REMOVE HIM PROTESTED

Congressman Granfield Asked to Help Save Head of Veterans' Bureau

Reports received here today from Springfield of contemplated replacement of Lieut.-Col. William J. Blake as regional director of the Veterans' Bureau told of the concern felt by World War veterans, and members of the American Legion were said to be outspoken in opposition of any such move.

Norman MacDonald, commander of Hampden County Council of the Legion, wired Brig.-Gen. Frank T. Hines, director of the bureau at Washington, stating his belief that the removal of Lieut.-Col. Blake was "unwarranted and against the best interests of disabled veterans and the bureau itself."

A move was immediately initiated by the Springfield Legion post to interest Congressman William J. Granfield to use his influence against the replacement of Lieut.-Col. Blake.

Mrs. Rogers Promises Aid in the Fight for Blake

Adjt. Dennis H. Haverty of the Massachusetts department of the American Legion, today received assurance from Congressman Edith Nourse Rogers that she will do everything she can to help in regard to any attempt to remove Capt. William J. Blake, regional director of the Veterans' Bureau.

Making the Most of Today's Dollar

Today's Prices Make Wise Buying Easy; Normal Times Near

(The eighth of a series of interviews with Massachusetts women leaders, giving their suggestions to those who buy goods and to those who sell them, concerning their mutual and vital problem of receiving and giving full value in every particular for every dollar spent. The ninth interview will appear in Monday's issue of the Evening American.)

By MRS. EVA WHITING WHITE

President Women's Educational and Industrial Union

FOR THE first time we are seeing business and science combine to put production on a scientific basis. This also is true of selling.

I believe that from now on output of all commodities will be governed by the demands of the public. This means economic safety.

Women today need to inform themselves on the principles of business finance, for these principles are the consumer's personal interest. There has been no time during the past 15 years when more real value was being given for the dollar than is being offered to the consumer right now.

As a member of several charity boards I have had this fact demonstrated to me in the buying of supplies in large quantities for our needs. Flour is one example—it has never been so low in years and years that we have been buying it. The same applies to almost every item we have had to buy, and these items are identical with those used in every household. Clothing, shoes, bedding, household furnishings for our institutions, silverware, groceries—everything in staples is a wise investment now.

If we all face the fact that the worst of the situation is over now, if for no other reason than that large sums have been appropriated by the city, state and national governments for public works, we shall better understand how shopping economics apply to our future safety.

This is the heart of the economic situation today. We are down to the fundamentals, and we find that it is real thrift to spend wisely and keep money circulating.

The merchants are doing their part, and the women must do theirs now.

Business simply cannot help being better when all the money that goes into public works gets into the wage earners' pay envelopes—that naturally follows. All have lost who are going to lose, and things actually are on the upward trend. Thousands of people have not lost a dollar, nor will they lose.

But if they want to keep what they have they must spend some of it to insure their future incomes.

Things will be back to normal by the first of February.

(44 cash prizes, aggregating $550, are offered to college attendants, members of the Women's Trade Union League, retail store employes and office workers, for the best, brief letters commenting on any ten articles in this series. Relief Payments Suspended; Lydon Plans the Final Stages of Case

Twelve more letters arrived today at the office of Hale Power, assistant corporation counsel, assisting in collecting refunds from defrauding soldiers' relief recipients, bringing the total pledges of all repayments to more than $10,000.

These letters were turned over to John J. Lydon, soldier relief commissioner, who has to date more than $1000 in cash repayments of an estimated total of $75,000 illegally taken from the city.

Commr. Lydon today began final stages of his case against William J. Bartholomew, South Boston veteran, who is alleged to have had $1900 in the bank while seeking city relief.

Every mail is bringing letters from veterans, who have been notified by Power that they must make restitution within 10 days or face legal proceedings. Meantime, pending settlement of the claim of the city against these veterans, their regular payments are suspended.

$50 Weekly for News and Picture Tips

Do you want to get money for being alert? If so, the Boston Evening American offers the opportunity. Each week $50 in prizes will be given for news and picture tips telephoned in to the News-Tip Editor, at Liberty 4000.

And what is a news tip? It's the information that something of interest to Greater Bostonians has taken place or will take place. Do you know, for instance, that an interesting picture is to be obtained, that an accident or an unusual event has happened, that there is going to be a business merger? That's a news tip. If you have a camera, take a picture of some news event, while it is happening. Pictures of unusual animal poses are wanted, too. Bring your action pictures to the American quick. Delay often spoils them for use in the American.

There will be $15 given weekly for the best or an unusual event news tip received; $10 for the next best; $5 for the next best, and $2 prizes for each of the 10 next most valuable tips. Of course, the first one who turns in the tip in an interesting event receives the award on that particular item. Anyone who is alive and alert can win.

The mercury dropped to an official reading of 16 degrees in Boston today, setting a new low for this winter, and then started climbing slowly until by noon the temperature was several degrees higher than yesterday.

Until mid-forenoon it was considerably colder than yesterday. The suburbs reported marks much lower in many cases than the official Boston figures, the lowest being zero at Burlington.

Fifty deaths are attributed to the extreme cold which still grips the Middle West, where relief is expected in the wake of an approaching snow storm.

With its mark of 16, Boston was one of the coldest large cities in the country. Chicago reported 12, New York 18, Philadelphia 20. Washington shivered with a minimum of 14 during the night and 16 at breakfast time.

SATURDAY WARMEST

The new low record for the winter was set here at 6 and 7 o'clock, and it was also at these hours that it was coldest in most of the suburbs and outlying towns.

Today's low mark may be contrasted with last Saturday's warmth, which set an all-time record for November 22 at the local weather bureau.

The lowest official temperature recorded today was 5 below zero, in Concord, N. H., but unofficial readings of 10 below were reported from Sullivan and Swansea, N. H.

A switch of the wind to the southwest started the gradual upward movement of the mercury. The official prediction is fair and warmer for tomorrow. Tonight is due to be sharp, but not approaching the cold of the past two nights.

The ice was fairly thick on the Frog Pond and at the Public Garden today, and Park Commissioner William P. Long said skating would be permitted if the cold continues over night.

Some of the temperature readings in and around Greater Boston were: Bedford 3, Lexington 4, Concord 7, Leominster 5, Dedham 8, Brockton 10, Lynn 12, Danvers 12, Rockland 13, Natick 13, Newton 13, Swampscott 14, Gloucester 14, Ipswich 13, Cambridge 15, Waltham 18, Marlboro 15.

Old Fighter Is Found Unconscious

Phil Powers, 48, of Rutland sq., said to be an old-time prize fighter, is on the danger list in City Hospital, the result of a fall on stone steps leading into his house. He was found unconscious at the door of his home by a neighbor, Arthur Blake. In addition to fracture of the right shoulder, he has a severe cut in his head.

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

FANNING WITH George Underwood

How Croker, Who Ruled New York For Many Years, Handled McGuire Against Hicken At Bareknuckles

Don't Confuse Boxing and Prizefighting

Memory plays strange tricks. Sometimes, try as you may, you cannot unlock the storehouse of your mind. Minutes, hours, days afterward, the door is suddenly opened by the strangest key. Last Wednesday evening, while speeding Long Islandward to carve the turkey for the children, over the humm of the singing rails we overheard an old sport in the club car mention the name of Abe Hicken. Where had we heard that name, we soliloquized. Hicken? Abe Hicken? In vain we searched memory's chambers. Abe Hicken was there, all right, but he kept well hidden.

George Underwood

Thanksgiving Night, children in bed, radio turned off, we pulled the chair up to the fireplace to read something besides sports pages for the first time in many days. We wanted something light, entertaining. From the bookcase we picked Donn Byrne's 'Hangman's House' to browse through once again. Byrne never tires. He writes poems in prose. Blind Raferty from his Queen of Harps, not any other of the old Irish bards—aye, even the great Carol, the last and greatest of them all—from their harps of red sally-wood never coaxed sweeter music than runs through the writings of Donn Byrne.

"When I was a boy," we read in Byrne's foreword, "Sir Daniel Donnelly, the great boxer, was still a memory of living men. And I can remember when Orby won the Derby stakes for Ireland, beating Woolwinder and the gallant Slieve Gallion by a length and a half. Will ever another Derby winner be foaled and trained in Ireland?"

Somehow that word Orby turned our mind back to Abe Hicken. We thought a few seconds, failed to associate them, and turned back to Byrne.

"To the right you can see the sweet purple outline of the Wicklow hills; Bray Head, like the head of some monstrous sea-animal, the silver edges of the Irish sea. There at your feet is the oval of the Leopardstown racecourse, none sweeter in the world. There to your left, down the slopes of the hills lies Dublin city—the green of great Phoenix Park, where the deer are grazing, soft Anna Liffey flowing beside it to the sea. There is the sun glistening on the great copper dome of the Four Courts; there the gray spires of the churches; there the sands of Ringsend, where Essex, Queen Elizabeth's darling, landed to conquer Ireland, and where he left to lose his head. All around is eternity and beauty, nothing ugly, nothing new, unless you except the house in the distance that Mr. Richard Croker, the American millionaire-statesman, is having built for himself."

Ah—"Richard Croker"—the name proved the key which the name of his Derby winner, Orby, didn't, to unlock the mystery of Abe Hicken.

It was the late Richard Croker, who told us about Abe Hicken, first of the lightweight championship line. It all came back to us now. How in a battle in Perryville, Maryland, Hicken had broken the jaw of Pete McGuire, who was seconded by the great Croker himself.

TAMMANY SACHEM

Richard Croker, the poor Irish boy who broke the power of Boss Tweed and as Head Sachem of Tammany Hall for two decades, ruled New York with an iron hand. Few political leaders ever ruled a big city as long and firmly as Dick Croker ruled the great city of New York.

It fell to the lot of this humble writer to be given the last interview the Master of Glencairn accorded a newspaperman. In October, 1921, a month before Mr. Croker's eightieth birthday, and on his last visit to this country, we dined with Mr. and Mrs. Croker and Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, who was a great friend of the Tammany leader, in the apartment of Harry Stevens.

Unlike many octogenarians, Richard Croker did not live in the past. Cold, practical, he refused to gaze at the celebrities of the old days through the magnifying glass many view the heroes of the past.

"No, Jack, no, you're wrong," declared the venerable millionaire-politician-sportsman, when O'Brien remarked that the fighters of the present do not compare with the champions of the past. "We have gone ahead in sport as well as in science. No heavyweight of the past could compare with Jack Dempsey. Even the great John L. Sullivan would have fallen before the bludgeoning fists of this annihilating puncher from Colorado. We have gone ahead, are going ahead in everything."

While speaking, Croker's keen gray eyes had glanced at the wall where hung one of Harry Stevens' most prized possesions, the original painting of Edmund Burke by Sir Joshua Reynolds, a "bauble" for which the millionaire caterer had given a fortune.

"Everything but this, Jack," Croker corrected himself, his hand sweeping towards the Reynolds. "Art, sculpture, painting, seem to be the only things we have not gone ahead in. Reynolds, Rembrandt, Raphael, Michelangelo, all those Old Masters, carried something to the grave with them."

The conversation turned towards the progress made in boxing and then it was that Richard Croker told of seconding Pete McGuire in his battle with Abe Hicken, the English lightweight champion, who came to this country and defeated the best men of his time.

CROKER'S TALE

"It was the night before Christmas in 1838," began the Master of Glencairn, "yet it seems but yesterday I was stumbling through the wet and the dark in the wee sma' hours o' the morning, one arm around McGuire's waist and the other helping support poor Peter's broken jaw, the pair of us hurrying to escape the officers of the law, who had swooped down in a raid on the fight.

"Pete and I were raised together here, you know. I met him soon after I left my birthplace in Black Rock, Ireland, and came to this country. In the old days we both were members of the boyish group on East 34th st., known as the Tunnel Gang. When Pete made the match with the English champion, Abe Hicken, Pete insisted I go to Maryland to second him.

"Fights in those days all had to be pulled on the quiet, sometimes in far places. I remember going all the way up to Boston Four Corners, a township on the Massachusetts-New York state line, to see John Morrissey fight Yankee Sullivan. And I saw the great John L. Sullivan beat John Flood, afterwards one of my ablest Tammany leaders, on the barge off Yonkers. Perryville, Cecil County, Maryland, was the spot picked for the Hicken-McGuire mill.

"It was not until after midnight, and a bitter cold morning it was, that stakes were pitched and McGuire and Hicken squared off. Pete had all the better of the early fighting. He was a fiercely aggressive fellow, who tore in wide open at an opponent. I knew Hicken was a cool, crafty, hard hitting ring general, cruel as a wolf, and I tried hard to steady Pete down. But no one could do anything with that wild Irishman.

"In the fifth round it happened. As McGuire came ripping, plunging in, Hicken set and caught him flush on the jaw with a terrific right hand smash. It broke poor Pete's jaw in two places.

"Just then the authorities swooped down on us. Fighters, bottle holders, referee, stakeholders, everyone 'departed in haste.' McGuire was in bad shape through pain and loss of blood. We stumbled through the dark with me half carrying him. As we dropped in the ditch once to escape a sheriff's posse, I had to put my hand over his mouth to stifle his groans, while they were going by.

"We were in a strange country. It was pitch dark and bitterly cold. Day was just breaking as we staggered out of the woods and fields and into a town where I found an early rising cobbler at his last.

"I got him to fasten a leather harness for poor Pete's jaw," concluded the millionaire-politician, "and it served as a sling until I got him back to New York and proper medical care."

Now some of you understand better how little boxing of the present is related to prize fighting of the past. Limited round boxing bouts with the gloves in open public view share little with bareknuckle mills of the past, pulled off in wee sma' hours of the morning in secret and for the fight and gambling gentry alone. Let's fan a bit more on it Monday.

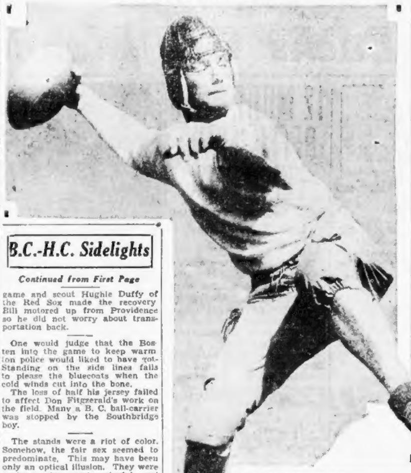
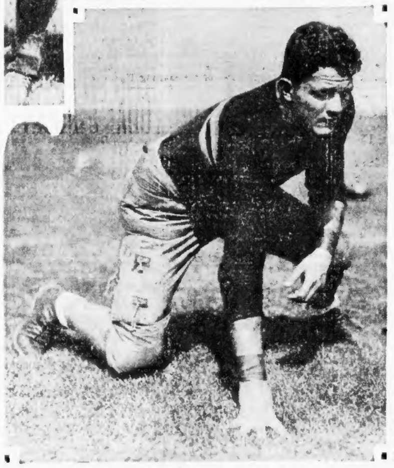
Philadelphia, Nov. 29—With Kitty Weiner of Germantown leading the attack with four goals, Boston defeated North Shore, 8 to 0, in the national intercity girls' field hockey series here.

GRIDIRON GREATS IN THE EYES OF THE NATION TODAY



SIMPKINS, STANFORD

ANDRES, DARTMOUTH



PRICE, ARMY

CARIDEO, NOTRE DAME

VAST THRONGS IN TWO SECTIONS of this land had their optics glued on the above array of football gods who clashed sity, faced Dartmouth, while Capt. Hal Andres, Newton boy, was trying to stop the bull-like surges of Simpkins out on the West Coast where Dartmouth and Stanford mingled in a big intersectional conflict. Frank Carideo, without doubt the all-America quarterback this season, will lead Notre Dame against Army before a record crowd in Soldiers Field. Charley Price, giant Army tackle, was offering the resistance.

game and scout Hughie Duffy of the Red Sox made the recovery Bill motored up from Providence so he did not worry about transportation back.

One would judge that the Bosten into the game to keep warm ton police would liked to have got- Standing on the side lines fails to please the bluecoats when the cold winds cut into the bone.

The loss of half his jersey failed to affect Don Fitzgerald's work on the field. Many a B. C. ball-carrier was stopped by the Southbridge boy.

The stands were a riot of color. Somehow, the fair sex seemed to predominate. This may have been only an optical illusion. They were perhaps the most colorful and looked like a bigger crowd than they actually were.

The Crusaders got a bad break, one that might have an important bearing on the outcome of the game, when Henry Baker, star punter, was forced to retire with an injured leg.

Baker got a big cheer from the crowd. Too bad cheers can't mend a bad leg.

Bob Quinn, president and owner of the Boston Red Sox, witnessed the contest from his private box in the press stand. With Prexy Quinn was his daughter and a party of friends.

Phillip O'Connell, the Purple threat, gave Boston College the first break of the game, fumbling the ball on Boston's 20-yard marker.

O'Connell then redeemed himself by taking a punt and running it back 29 yards to Boston's 43-yard mark.

Don Fitzgerald, Holy Cross tackle lost a portion of his jersey in the first period.

Bill Bohner, Boston College quarterback and Robert Long, Holy Cross guard, both of Jamaica Plain and life long friends, wore No. 16 on jerseys.

Both the B. C. and H. C. bands looked cold in their white flannels and white hats. The Holy Cross outfit wore purple jackets, and Boston College their maroon. One in every three managed to sport an overcoat, which was smart business.

Malden Loses Money on Ticket Increase

Tabulation of the attendance at the Malden-Medford high game at Malden shows that the plan to increase revenue by raising the price of reserved seats, which had for years been $1, to $2 this year, did not return the expected increase.

There were 5000 less attended the game than the previous year, when it was played at Medford, despite the fact that there were some 4000 more seats available this year than last. This means a net drop of 9000 in anticipated receipts, or approximately $18,000.

It is estimated that had all seats been sold at $1 this year, the net receipts would have been from $1500 to $2000 more than were actually received under the price boost.

No Game at Ft. Banks

There will be no game at Ft. Banks Sunday. The Fitton management has decided to end the season with their victory over Pere Marquette.

All-American Team Named on Monday

Bill Grimes, the Boston Evening American's football expert, will announce his all-America team in Monday's editions.

Bill has seen all the leading teams in the East and has had first-hand information regarding the Western collegiate elevens. It will be well worth looking over for the selector is one who knows football and the players from years of experience.

In Tuesday's American the all-scholastic team, picked by Bill Connell, the Boston Evening American's Schoolboy Editor, will be printed.

PERES TO MEET STEAMROLLERS

The Pere Marquettes and the Providence Steamrollers will ring down the curtain of big time football in these pastures tomorrow afternoon when they collide at Braves Field.

All season long, or perhaps until the Fittons whaled the Peres, South Boston's grid hosts have been talking of what the Peres could do to the Steamrollers, claiming that there was little to choose between semi-pro and pro football.

Tomorrow this question will be settled. South Boston, and all Greater Boston fans for that matter, will be able to learn just how the sandlotters and the pros compare.

A charity game is on the books for Dilboy Field, Somerville, when the Fordham All-Stars, led by Tony Siano, meet the Dilboy Post eleven.

The proceeds will go to the City of Somerville's unemployed.

The St. Marks Holy Name Society eleven, one of Dorchester's best, will play the Codman A. A. at Norfolk St. Playground tomorrow.

Vitt to Confer With Quinn, May Be Red Sox New Boss

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 29—It was learned here today that Oscar Vitt, former big league star and now manager of the Hollywood Club of the Pacific Coast Circuit, may become the manager of the Boston Red Sox in 1931.

Vitt left here recently on a trip through the Panama Canal and is making his destination New York, where he will arrive on Dec. 2. It was understood before he left that he was on his way to confer with Bob Quinn, owner of the Red Sox.

It has been known hereabouts that Vitt has had inquiries from big league clubs and that his graduation into the major leagues is not merely an idle rumor.

The Red Sox are the only big league club which has not signed up a manager for the coming season.

"The Red Sox are not a hopeless club," said Vitt upon departure. "It's the sort of a club that has possibilities."

Bill Lane, owner of the Hollywood club, is not opposed to Vitt leaving his property. He told Vitt that his job with Hollywood was secure as long as he wanted it and that he wouldn't balk Vitt's progress if he gets a chance to better himself.

Yanks Purchase Oriole Battery

Needham-Stoughton in Soccer Clash

Needham and Stoughton will battle it out today at Needham in the only soccer game carded for this district. The elevens are bitter rivals and the clash should attract a large gathering of fans.

Needham is the surprise of the circuit. Starting out with a series of defeats, it has come strong in its last two contests and defeated not only the Clan McLeod but the league-leading Bird & Son aggregation of Walpole.

CHRISTNER IN HOSPITAL

Chicago, Nov. 29 (INS)—Meyer K. O. Christner, Akron, O., heavyweight, was a patient at Esley Memorial Hospital today with a fractured right knee as a result of his defeat at the hands of Mickey Walker, world's middleweight champion, last night, at the Coliseum.

Walker, on his second invasion of the heavyweight ranks, scored a technical knockout over the larger Christner when he belted him with a left hook and Christner pitched out of the ring and into the laps of ringsiders, thence to the concrete floor.

Besides the knee fracture the Ohioan suffered a leg hemorrhage. The bout ended 58 seconds after it began.

SHOWS WELL IN TRAINING CAMP

By RINGSIDE

Johnny Risko is roughing it in a camp on the shore of Lake Erie, according to word received in Boston by Matchmaker Alex MacLean of the Boston Garden.

Risko is getting ready for his 10-round jam with Jim Maloney, which will be staged at the Garden on next Friday night for the Christmas Basket Fund of the Boston Evening American.

In a letter to MacLean, Dunn explains why Risko is always in better condition for an important bout like the Maloney mill than when tackling ordinary opposition. Dunn writes as follows:

"It is all a question of Johnny getting the proper training. Give him an opponent he figures to beat and he will train in lackadaisical fashion. He lives at the beautiful home he has built for his newly wed wife, surrounded by every comfort. He slips over to the neighborhood gym for an hour in the afternoon, but hurries back home to supper and the usual round of entertaining which young couples can't get away from. Consequently, while John may get physically well, he doesn't work up that nervous eagerness which brings the real fighting edge.

"But give him a tough match with an opponent figured to beat him and Risko's fighting spirit flashes out. As soon as I told him he was matched with Jim Maloney for Boston Garden on Dec. 5 he grabbed his sparring partners and trainers and beat it straight out to our old rough and ready training camp out on Lake Erie.

There are no electric lights or steam heat out there. Beyond a good cook who takes care of the boys' appetite, it is every man for himself. And how Risko thrives under that kind of life. Right now he is working as well, or better, than when he checked Sharkey, Von Porat and Vittorio Campolo.

"Tell my Boston friends Risko positively will repeat his Cleveland performance and knock Maloney stone cold in two or three rounds; there's nothing to it now that John has buckled down to his old style of getting ready for tough opposition."

Zeramby and Hanlon in Salem Bout

Bat Silva looks for a capacity crowd when Jake Zeramby and Johnny Hanson clash in a 10-round bout for the lightweight championship of New England at Salem on Monday night.

Hanlon has proved a sensation. He has won 21 bouts in a row and is of the opinion he can upset Zaramby or anybody else. In his last start, Hanlon scored a brilliant victory over the clever Stanley Winneryck of Springfield. Hanlon is aggressive and punches well with both hands.

It will be Zeramby's first start since late last spring. Jake was obliged to take a long layoff on account of injured dukes. He had his hands in casts for several months and then had two small chips of loose bone removed from his left hand.

Zeramby's hands are now perfect and he has been tipping over his sparring partners in gym workouts.

The Zeramby-Hanlon mill is a "natural."

TRIO OF TIGERS READY TO SPRING ON EAGLES

BILL BRANDER COACH POWERS CAPT. MACKEY PAUL RUNGE

COACH EDDIE POWERS of the Boston Tigers talks tricks over with his sturdy captain and defenseman, Reg Mackey, as the Tigers prepared to take on the New Haven Eagles at the Garden tonight. Two of the snarling Tigers are also shown. They are Bill Brander and Paul Runge, wingman and defenseman, respectively, who are prodigies for the powers that be. The three of them will be offering thrills to rinksiders this p. m.

Tigers and Eagles Meet on Garden Ice Tonight

The Boston Tigers tonight will tackle the New Haven Eagles in their third [illegible] game at the Boston Garden. Despite the loss of Yip Foster, Manager Eddie Powers believes that his men will come through to repeat the victory they scored over the Eagles in the first game of the season.

The locals will present quite an altered appearance tonight. Paul Runge and Peaches Lyons, who went directly from the Bruins into the Tigers first string forward line, have been sent down to the second string for further experience, while two tried and proven veterans, Johnny Loucks and Eddie Burke, have been promoted to the first string line to work with Hank Boyd, the leading right winger in the circuit.

At defense, Guy McNeill of Edmonton, a star point as an amateur, will get his first chance to show Boston hockey fans what he can do as a defense player. When Guy came to the Bruins last spring at the highest price ever paid an amateur, Art Ross shifted him to wing and that is always where he has played in Boston. Capt. Reg Mackey will be at the other defense position, with Bill Brander, promising but green, in reserve, and Mat Winkler in the nets.

New Haven Spares—Kuhn, Jeremiah, Conves, Ayres, Radley, Keating.

Game starts at 8.30 o'clock.

New Haven Sextet Hitting Fact Pace

The New Haven crowd is a pretty colorful bunch. After a slow start the Eagles now are going along at a fine clip, with two straight wins against Philadelphia and a tie game with the Providence Reds behind them.

Their captain is Vernon (Jackie) Forbes, as colorful and acrobatic a goalie as is to be found in the business. In the past he has been poison to the Tigers, and this year, now that he is captain, he may be expected to outdo himself.

On the defense, the Eagles are well fixed with the bumping kind of backs which the fans enjoy so much. Chris Speyer and George Hines are veterans, while two young newcomers, Yip Hadley and Vernon Ayres have been doing very well in substitute roles.

Gene Chouinard, Ray Burmeister and Billy Boucher form the New Haven first line, good enough to press any defense in the circuit. For a second line, the Eagles have an outfit of just about the most promising ex-amateurs in the business. Gordon "Doggy" Kuhn will be remembered as the scintillating winger on the Truro Bearcats who played in Boston two years ago, and Jack Keating, the pint-sized center of the St. John's Beavers, is also with the Eagles.

SHIRES SENT TO MINORS

Washington, Nov. 29 (US)—The outright sale of Arthur Shires to the Milwaukee Club of the American Association has been announced by President Clark Griffith of the Washington American League Club.

The colorful utility first baseman of the Senators was disposed for $1[illegible], Griffith revealed.

Shires is widely known in the baseball world for his pugilistic proclivities.

Indoor Polo Card Announced

Maj. Charles L. Furber has announced the schedule of the Boston indoor polo season, which starts two weeks from tonight at Commonwealth armory and closes March 14 with a clash between Harvard and Yale varsity trios.

Ten teams, equally divided between divisions A and B, will seek championships in what is expected to prove the most successful renewal of the indoor galloping game in this city in years.

The major division will have Harvard varsity, the 101st, "Big Jim" Clark's newly-formed battery A, the new Westwood Polo [illegible] and Lt. Roland Maugini's 110th Cavalry.

Light Heavy Class St. Joe's Feature

Light heavyweights will feature the St. Joe's T. A. Society's amateur boxing show at Mechanics Building tonight. Billy Cuddy reports that a large number of entries have been received in this division, and that some lively battles are expected.

In addition to the contests in the light heavyweight class, there will be bouts at 118, 126, 135, 147 and 160 pounds. In all, 40 bouts are on tap for tonight.

Bears Fined $1000 for Playing Savoldi

Columbus, O., Nov. 29 (INS)—A fine of $1000 today was imposed upon the Chicago Bears professional football team by Joe F. Carr, president of the National Football League, for playing Joe Savoldi, former Notre Dame grid star, in the Thanksgiving Day game with the Chicago Cardinals.

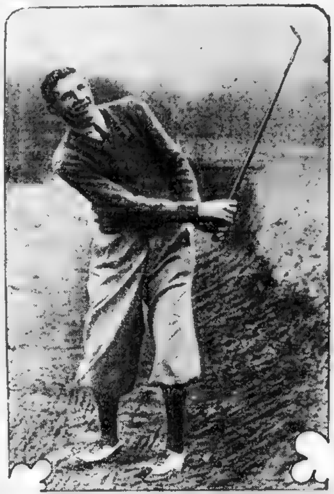
HORTON SMITH'S GOLF LESSONS

Famous Young Missouri Professional Illustrates and Describes the Mechanics and Technique of Play

DON'T TURN BLADE AT MOMENT OF CONTACT



There is no shot in golf that gives a greater thrill than to play out of a bad lie over a house, a tree, or something else high, and to land on the green close to the hole. You have to play the ball well up into the air to accomplish such a shot.

The picture shown here describes such a shot better than words. In these days of practically a club for every shot, one often takes a deep-faced niblick not only to get out of a bunker such as is pictured here, but also to go over a tree or house as well. That's the club I used in this instance and, as I recall it, I got a most decided and desired loft to that ball.

The tendency, of course, is to look up immediately after, or while in the very act of making, such shots. Many who dub those strokes blame "looking up too soon" for their errors, but I'm inclined to think that "rising up" just before contact has more to do with such miscues than anything else. I frequently look up to follow the flight of the ball almost instantly on contact, but I've trained myself not to "rise up." That detail cannot be emphasized too much.

These two cardinal points should always be remembered by all who attempt bunker shots:

1—You won't get much loft if you take too much sand.

2—Above all, don't turn your blade as you hit; that is a very common fault and invariably it spoils the shot.

Mat Show Adds $3409.89 to American Basket Fund

By JACK CONWAY

The Christmas Basket Fund of the Boston Evening American has been enriched by $3,409.89, as a result of the world's heavyweight championship wrestling bout between Gus Sonnenberg and Jack Sherry, which was staged by Paul Bowser at the new Boston Arena on Thanksgiving night.

It is the largest amount raised at a sporting event in the history of the Christmas Basket Fund. The sum is a tribute to Paul Bowser, Gus Sonnenberg, Jack Sherry, the other wrestlers on the card and to the [illegible] fans who turned out to witness the world's title contest.

The gross receipts, less federal taxes, were $15,018.43. The total expense of the show, including cost of wrestlers, rent, ushers and other charges of promotion, was $9,698.65.

The net profits of Paul Bowser were $5319.78. Half of this amount, $2659.89, was turned over to the Christmas Basket Fund.

Jack Conway

Gus Sonnenberg, world's champion, donated $500 to the Christmas Basket Fund.

Jack Sherry, the unsuccessful challenger, gave $250 to the Christmas Basket Fund.

The amounts received from Bowser, Sonnenberg and Sherry brought the total from this one show to $3409.89.

This figure attests to the splendid co-operation received from Paul Bowser, Sonnenberg, Sherry and the public.

The wrestling game is today on a firm foundation in New England as a result of the efforts of Bowser. For ten years he has been staging matches in this city. He has developed local talent, has always given the public a run for its money and today has the confidence of everybody connected with sport.

Sonnenberg was brought to the front by Bowser's efforts as a promoter. Bowser promoted the bout at the Boston Garden a year ago last January at which Sonnenberg won the world's heavyweight championship by defeating Strangler Lewis.

Sonnenberg has since successfully defended his crown against all comers.

Gus has brought new followers to wrestling. A product of Dartmouth college, he has the support of college men in all parts of the country every time he steps into action.

Sonnenberg's flying tackle has given mat followers a new thrill. His methods have been imitated by others, but nobody has been able to furnish the kind of thrills which have enabled Sonnenberg to draw more than a million dollars at the gate in mat contests.

East Boston Teams in Title Grid Clash

In its final game of the campaign, the St. Lazarus Holy Name Club of Orient Heights, undefeated to date, will meet the East Boston City Club at World War Memorial Park, East Boston, tomorrow afternoon for the mythical championship of the Noddle Island District.

SCHOOL WORK PLAN RAPPED

James A. "Jerry" Watson, in a complaint to the school committee and the governor's committee on unemployment yesterday declared that the practice of permitting students in Boston trades schools to engage in private employment is preventing skilled workers from obtaining jobs.

Watson asked the school committee to permit him to discuss the practice at a committee meeting.

He called existing conditions "indefensible" and charged that the 200 students who devote one week to instruction in the trades schools and the following week to regular employment in private concerns are denying 100 skilled workers a chance to obtain regular employment.

"In this period of depression and unemployment," Watson wrote, "no one should in the slightest degree be responsible for any additional hardship and having this thought in mind, I write you to protest against the system now in vogue in certain high schools of our city which while educating people in trades, permits a large number of them to work part time for a salary for private concerns.

"The amount thus earned is approximately $7 per week. The method employed is as follows: Those who are taking a course in some particular trade, who are in the second, third or fourth year of their school term, work one week at the school at this trade and one week for private individuals outside of the school."

Wife Asks $25,000 for Poor Liquor

New Bedford, Nov. 29—An unusual law suit was instituted here when Mrs. Hilda Lehner, of 54 Summer st., sued Mr. and Mrs. Thurbio J. Sylvia of Acushnet st. for $25,000. Mrs. Lehner claims that the Sylvias sold her husband, William J., poor liquor which ruined his health.

Cow Sets New Mark

Chicago, Nov. 29—A record of 10,000 quarts of milk in 10 months and a profit above feed for her eight lactation of 4.4 cents a quart by Highfield Colantha Mosie, 10-year-old Holstein cow, was reported here. She is owned by John G. Ellis of Lee, Mass.

Crosscup-Pishon Post Stage a Great Midnight Frolic, to Start at 10

Christmas welfare work among unemployed and needy World War veterans will gain mighty impetus tonight when stars of the principal shows in town join with Crosscup-Pishon Post of the American Legion in putting over a two-hour midnight frolic at the studios of WBZ-WBZA.

The broadcast beginning at 10 signalizes the launching of a campaign of unprecedented vigor to provide tangible cheer to destitute and disabled veterans in Greater Boston. Each year Crosscup-Pishon post carries out this magnanimous labor of love on a grand scale, but this season an unusually vigorous effort is to be expended.

Barbara Wilson, comely star of the Pulitzer prize play, "Street Scene"; Queenie Smith, who headlines "The Street Singer" musical show, together with the principals of theirs, other shows and vaudeville units have given their unqualified promises to participate in the festivities of the midnight broadcast.

Another unusual feature of the Legion frolic will be the broadcast of result of the Bruins-Les Canadiens recapitulation of the high-lighted scoring plays. Following this description from the ringside by Jim Souter, WBZ-WBZA will present Joe Cook, dialect comedian. He is to offer a microphone burlesque of the hockey game.

Paul H. Hines, commander of Crosscup-Pishon post, and Carroll Swan, past commander, will share honors at the microphone as masters of ceremony. Aidan Redmond will announce.

Radio Artist

GLORIA HOLDEN, former member of the Theater Guild company, and heroine of many radio programs, who will be heard tonight at 8:30 over WBZ-WBZA during the Fuller program. (Credit Kesslere.)

Concerning Radio

Edited by BILL WHIPPLE

So many and important are the radio programs scheduled for tonight and tomorrow it would be a bad breach of faith on our part were we not to emphasize them somewhat by devoting this space to their enumeration, or at least some of the more attractive broadcasts.

Coming to you over the NBC network tonight at 7:30—it has not been accepted by a local station as yet—will be the voice of Col. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., governor-general of Porto Rico, who recently arrived in New York and who will address a large radio audience with a plea in behalf of the thousands of starving Porto Rican children. Kids are kids the world over and the colonel's talk should at least merit an attentive ear.

With Arthur "Bugs" Baer, famous humorist and newspaper columnist, as master of ceremonies, and an array of talent, including exceptionally popular radio artists, the new series of the RCA Radiotron Company broadcasts, which start this evening at 8.15 on a Saturday and Wednesday schedule, should furnish a most congenial 15 minutes for the listener-in.

Every alert, patriotic American will learn much concerning an important world topic, by tuning in this evening on WNAC at 9:30, when a warning to the country against Communism will be voiced in the National Radio Forum by Representative Hamilton Fish, chairman of the House committee which has been investigating communistic activities. Representative Fish has made a close study of his subject; his address will be enlightening.

"WHERE ARE WE GOING TONIGHT?"
"IDA' KNOW!"

For the musically inclined fan, or perhaps we should say those who lean towards vocal programs, what seems to us to be an attractive presentation over the air will be the medley which the Fuller Quartet will sing tonight at 8.30 over WBZ-WBZA. This broadcast might well be called "To the Ladies," as each of the five numbers in the group is a "girl" song—"Ida," "Mandy," "My Gal Sal," "So Long Mary" and "Little Annie Rooney."

Another vocal treat which will be on the air tonight at 9 o'clock over WEEI, is the Russian Symphonic Choir, under the direction of Basile Kibalchich and Mischa Levitzki, distinguished pianist, to be presented during the General Electric Hour, which Walter Damrosch will direct. In addition to church music and folk-songs the choir offers arrangements of popular light classics, originally written for the piano, and known to every music lover.

Coming to the radio offerings for Sunday an outstanding program will be presented over WEEI at 9:15 p. m. Giovanni Martinelli, who has inaugurated his eighteenth year as premier tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Company, is to be the artist of the Atwater Kent Radio Hour. The concert will be that which Mr. Martinelli was scheduled to sing as an Atwater Kent artist last October but which was prevented by illness.

Over WNAC tomorrow evening at 10 o'clock the Royal Typewriter Radio Hour will present a new series of broadcasts, featuring Jesse Crawford, organist; ten solo instrumentalists, a large group of guest stars; and "duotones," a unique musical combination blending the harmonies of the instrumentalists with the organ. A number of noted musical artists will be on the same program.

Also over WNAC Sunday afternoon, from 3 to 5 o'clock, will be presented a special concert by the Curtis Symphony Orchestra of Philadelphia. Composed of students of the Curtis Institute of Music, this orchestra has risen in the last few years to a position where it ranks with the most important symphony combinations in the country.

"A Dream," popular alike with tenor and baritone concert artists, is sung in the wordless harmonies of the "Muted Singers" under Gustave Haenschen's direction on the Chase and Sanborn program tomorrow night from 8:30 to 9.00 over WEEI.

Tomorrow at 1 o'clock the Rev. John B. Sexton, D. D., professor of Ecclesiastical Rectory at St. John's Seminary, Brighton will be the speaker during the Catholic Truth Period broadcast over WNAC and Yankee Network.

Death Car Driver Held in Dedham

Wallace Brais, 27, of Brighton ave., Allston, driver of the automobile that collided with a taxicab at Bridge and Commonwealth sts., Dedham, resulting in the death of a girl companion, was charged with drunkenness in the Dedham court yesterday. The case was continued to December 5. Francis E. Flynn, 23, of Brighton ave., who was riding with Brais, was held as a material witness. The girl killed was Mildred R. Wanders, 24, of Spring Park ave., Jamaica Plain.

RADIO Personalities

An electrical contrivance made to solve the vexatious "clump clump" foot of the orchestra leader to start the group a-playing, has been evolved by NORM CLOUTIER of WTIC in Hartford. This contrivance flashes three lights instead of the time-worn foot beats which is occasionally audible over the microphone. . . Do you know that OZZIE NELSON has three songs on the market which are bringing in the shekels quite speedily? The tunes are "I'm Satisfied With You," "And Then Your Lips Met Mine," and "I Dare You." MADGE TUCKER, the idea girl of Jolly Bill and Jane, got her first radio job in Washington because a studio executive liked her voice on the phone. . . CHANNON COLLINGE of the Cathedral Hour used to be a cartoonist. . . Add purchases: FELIX FERDINANDO, WOR, Newark conductor, bought the original Paganini strad for $50,000. . . IRENE BEASLEY used to teach school in Mississippi. . . PETER DIXON of NBC was editor of a newspaper in Texas when he was but 19 years old.

DRIVE FOR CASH VETS' BONUS PLANNED

He would [illegible] 25 per cent was added by Congress in lieu of cash payments he said.

Passage of the Cochran bill would add between $2,000,000,000 and $2,500,000,000 to the purchasing power of 3,000,000 world war veterans, Cochran said.

DRYS TO ATTACK ENFORCEMENT

Washington, Nov. 29 (INS)—Some congressional drys, regarding prohibition enforcement as a failure and believing this to be the greatest argument of the wets, are planning to attack the federal prohibition enforcement regime in the coming session.

This became evident today when two nominal drys of the House, Rep. Cooper (R) of Wisconsin, 80-year-old dean of the House, and Rep. Howard (D) of Nebraska, assailed present enforcement conditions.

Cooper described the situation as "intolerable" while Howard declared "there has been no such thing as honest enforcement of the law."

The new justice department enforcement regime, created last year when Congress transferred prohibition enforcement from the Treasury to the Attorney General's office, is expected to be given scrupulous attention early in the session when the justice department appropriation bill is considered in the house.

The bill carrying some $17,000,000 for enforcement will include a $2,500,000 increase for 500 additional agents.

Thayer Case Goes Over Until Tuesday

Worcester, Nov. 29—The Thayer divorce trial in probate court here was adjourned yesterday by Judge Atwood until next Tuesday following a day of testimony dealing largely with liquor.

Thayer's case had been rested and Atty. Clarence E. Tupper had opened his case for Mrs. Thayer when Judge Atwood ordered the adjournment until Tuesday.

Driver and Truck Reported Missing

George Johnston, a driver-salesman for a Provincetown produce company, disappeared after making his last delivery last night, police reported today. Johnston's absence was not noted until he failed to appear at the store to begin his Saturday deliveries today. The truck used by Johnston also is missing.

Begged to [illegible]

[illegible] "Say 'yes,'" he begged.

"I don't know, Dick."

"Don't you want to marry me?"

"It isn't that. You are a dear boy. It isn't that I don't want to marry you—I'm rather afraid I—well, afraid to get married."

"You'll get over that, you'll learn to love me. It's only natural for young folks to marry."

"I suppose so. Anyway, Dick, I'll think it over."

"There isn't anyone else?"

"Of course not, Dick—why, I never went around with anyone, except perhaps to let some boy come home with me from kid parties. No one—no other boy ever held my hand the way you do. I suppose that means I'm in love."

"Of course it does."

She was staring down at the patchwork of moonlight on the porch floor as it shone through the vines. Walters gloried in her seeming bashfulness, her unsophistication and embarrassment.

Mrs. Simmons came out.

"It's awfully late, Ethel," she said gently, "nearly half past eleven."

"We met Mabel and her husband at the drug store and stopped to talk, mother."

Walters [illegible] over to the door.

"It's my fault, Mrs. Simmons," he said. "I've been trying to get Ethel to promise to marry me."

"Why!" she exclaimed, "why, Richard!"

"Gee, Mrs. Simmons, I'm awfully in love with her. I'd be good to her."

"Well, Richard, Ethel is rather young—she ought to wait a year. But I know you'd be good to her. And anyway it is something Ethel has to decide for herself—isn't that so, dear?"

"Yes, mother. I told Dick that I [illegible]."

"Oh," she said gently, pulling her hand away. "Oh, Dick—I—I couldn't. I never have kissed any boy."

"All right, darling—when we get formally engaged I'll kiss you, won't I?"

Ethel turned her head lest in the moonlight he see the derisive grin on her face. Walters took this for modesty. He took her hand again. [illegible]

Sunday Feature

The Globe came out with a Sunday feature including a long interview with Viola, the beautiful and innocent model—if one were to believe the headlines.

Sid Cavanaugh had written the article, visited Viola in her special quarters at the jail and secured the interview, said interview having been first written by Abe Vance and then copied by Viola to refresh her memory in the event that others from newspapers should question her.

And when Walters was calling on Ethel one rainy evening, sitting well back on the wide porch the case came up.

"My reporter friend says that her statement is all hooey," Dick told her.

"I don't know," Ethel faltered. "I don't know much about such things, but I feel that the poor girl is right. It seems an awful crime to lock her up because she fought—fought to save her honor. I'm sure I'd fight to the very last breath."

"Darling, I know you would," Walters quickly assured her, "but in the first place you would never put yourself in such a position—you wouldn't ever go into an empty cottage with me—"

"I should say not!"

"Even if I should ask you and you knew I'd never do anything like that."

"One never knows, Dick. It's awfully hard to tell what anyone would do."

"But you know that I not only love you, dearest, but I respect you. It is your goodness, your purity as well as your beauty, that makes me love you and want you."

[illegible] thinking things over and that probably all in good time, she would consent to marrying him.

Walters went home with his head away up in pink clouds. It is a wonder he saw any of the traffic lights that night.

It was the very next day that Ethel got a letter addressed to her at the school of design, from Abe Vance. It asked her to call at his office.

She was afraid to go out, more afraid to disregard it, so she finally [illegible] up courage and called at the office.

"Miss Simmons," he said sternly, "you can save Viola Forsythe."

"Why—why, I cannot—I—I don't know a thing—"

"Yes you do, you know plenty, and I tell you that you must save her!"

Ethel clutched the arm of the chair. Things turned green and the office seemed to be spinning around and around.

FROM ANDREE'S ICY TOMB–

IN the spring of 1897 three men, Andree, Strindberg and Fraenkel, attempted the first air flight into the Arctic in a balloon. They never returned. Their bones were found on White Island last August, and with them the records of their heroism and tragedy.

As precious to the scientific world as these records were none was as priceless as the UNDEVELOPED FILMS FROM ANDREE'S OWN CAMERA found in sealed metal cylinders near their bodies. They were turned over to the Swedish Society of Anthropology and Geology and under the care of Professor Hertzberg of the Royal Technical Laboratory these films were carefully developed.

Of the 192 exposures made by Andree 33 years ago only 20 could be salvaged for posterity. The photographs made from these films, torn out of the icy sepulchre of the north, appear EXCLUSIVELY in the Hearst newspapers in America. Tomorrow the Boston Sunday Advertiser will show you more of these historical pictures together with more details of the terrible ordeal suffered by these men. Beatrice Fairfax

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

A thousand compliments on your wonderful column. I know by reading your column daily that you've solved many [illegible] now I come to you with one also, though it's not mine, but of a very dear friend whom I love [illegible] I will call her J and the man A. For a year or so they have been going out together but A doesn't seem to come [illegible] make things definite by proposing. Both families think [illegible] of the affair and A has no excuse for delaying his intentions. He [illegible] not bashful, either. He says he's got to work hard to get ahead in his profession of chief engineer and wants to sow a few wild oats before he settles down. I really don't think that's fair of him, for he calls for her when he feels like it and then drops her without a word and [illegible] when he pleases. [illegible] he would like an expensive marble writing set like one I have just [illegible]. Won't you please answer this [illegible] doing the right thing, no matter what she does? Here's good luck to your column, and may it get bigger and bigger. L. F.

Dear L. F.—I know you mean well to take such an interest in your friend, and while you and I may not think so much of this boy friend, after all, it's not our business, is it? No matter how good the advice is, if it is given unasked and probably [illegible] [illegible] make her [illegible] and [illegible] about men from [illegible] kinds. Pointless [illegible] and just about how down [illegible] but what can we do about it? If your girl friend's [illegible] fed up in time and [illegible] better anyway.

Don't Give Up Children

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I am a mother of six children and have been divorced two years. I'm keeping company with a [illegible] five years younger than I [illegible] how in trouble [illegible] been married at the start but he [illegible] enough money to take us [illegible] unless I gave up the children. [illegible] them anyway [illegible] good to them.

ANXIOUS

[illegible] How can [illegible] Surely your love for the six [illegible] must be stronger than any other consideration. [illegible] problem [illegible] involved and there are so many things I would [illegible] to know before advising you. Can't you come [illegible] see me sometime and talk it over? I assume that you [illegible] to support you, and [illegible] to keep the [illegible] can always be arranged [illegible] more people who want to adopt children than there [illegible] to supply the demand. [illegible] come in and talk it over.

Depends on the Person

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I was married quite young. I am [illegible] now and I have two [illegible] When I got married I [illegible] I was [illegible] love. I still care [illegible] a good deal [illegible] think it's [illegible] love me, but if I ask him he tells me that he does love me. Please advise me how to make life happy.

UNHAPPY

Dear Unhappy — There are so many things that make people unhappy. I wish you could come in and talk to me, perhaps I could suggest something after knowing the nature of your quarrels and more about you and your husband. There is no rule of thumb to lay down for happiness. So much depends on the individual. I would love to have a nice long talk with you.

Hazards to Eye Should Be Avoided at Work

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.

A GREAT deal has been said about industrial hazards of all kinds. There are many such, but it is undoubtedly true that "the eye hazards of industry have come to be one of the most serious causes of blindness in America. What is going to be done about it?"

Dr. Copeland

The language quoted is taken from the recent and very interesting report of a study conducted by The National Safety Council and The National Society for the Prevention of Blindness.

This survey covers the records kept by various industrial corporations during the years 1926 and 1927, in which period 2757 men and women were reported saved from serious injury or total blindness in both eyes during those two years. What I mean is that improved conditions have done away with accidents which would have occurred under old-time conditions. Also, 4654 cases were recorded of workmen saved from injury or total blindness in one eye. This makes a total of 1[illegible]68 eyes saved from serious injury or total destruction.

Represented in the list of 583 industrial plants, employing an aggregate of 57[illegible],396 men, to which questionnaires were sent, were metal, chemical, automotive, steam railroad, cement, mining and other companies. These are the industries in which most of the eye injuries are met.

The use of protective glasses or goggles with lenses and face masks, so strongly built as to resist flying metal or deadly chemicals, has come to be the accepted thing in most industrial plants. In consequence, the numbers of cases of blindness and eye injury have become fewer each year.

There has been a great increase in the use of destructive chemicals in industry in recent years. With the spattering of molten metal or injurious chemicals, some of the glass lenses are so badly damaged that they have to be replaced. Think what the conditions would be if protective lenses were not used. These goggles and headmasks have saved thousands of workers from blindness or terrible eye injury.

It is impossible to calculate in terms of dollars the cost of blindness, to the individual, to the employer, to the state and nation. Many still do not realize, or will not believe, that it is possible to prevent eye injury or blindness in industry. They take for granted that just about so many persons will receive eye injuries, and many companies are spending thousands of dollars for damages without considering the importance of prevention.

Every workman should be protected in all ways in these hazardous industries. Sight is too precarious to be squandered so carelessly. Such surveys as this will open the minds of the public to the dangers in many of our industrial fields, and a solution will be found to remove them.

Answers to Health Queries

MRS. F. C. S. Q.—What causes intense itching? Sometimes it is my arms or my back, and other times my legs. Is it my nerves?

A.—This condition may be due to constipation, auto-intoxication, intestinal disturbance, poor nutrition, overeating, or to some food poisoning. Fear, embarrassment and certain diseases of the nervous system may also cause the trouble.

What's in Fashion?

Gay Christmas Packages

Directed by AMOS PARRISH

NEW YORK, Nov. 29. These days [illegible] Christmas package is often [illegible] goes inside. And new fashions in Christmas wrapping [illegible] help make every gift look important.

Calico-like designs are some of the newest. Small polka dots, plaids, checks, and tiny sprig patterns have an old fashioned feeling that sort of goes with the season.

Paper bearing Christmas trees, bells, stars and [illegible] are still much in fashion. But they're being done in new ways. Sometimes they're very modernistic in coloring and angles. [illegible] time they're conventionalized into stiff amusing little figures.

If you like the modernistic treatment of design, you'll be fascinated by the patterns that are nothing more or less than bold, dashing brush strokes—and by the skyscraper patterns and the geometrics in vivid colorings.

Old-Fashioned Scenes

Old-fashioned scenes [illegible] some of the most charming of Christmas wrapping papers. Figures that look as though they might have stepped right out of Godey's Ladies' Book, quaint high hatted, swallow-tailed gentlemen and crinolined ladies—stage coaches and early locomotives and scenes that represent an historical event [illegible] make packages too lovely even to unwrap.

And of course the animal lover is not forgotten. For him—or her are the reflective Scottie, [illegible] lumbering elephants [illegible] sleepy pussy cats and loping bunnies that decorate some of the newest papers.

Children like these animals, too, and they like the papers that show beloved nursery rhyme characters, or dolls, or fat-stomached Santa Clauses, or little children like themselves.

Other Christmas Papers

You can have amusing papers, whimsical papers, feminine papers and masculine papers. Papers that are dainty and papers that are bold. And papers that present art for art's sake alone.

The clever thing to do, of course, is to buy not only the papers you like yourself, but particular designs for particular people—the design that will appeal to the recipient of the gift.

Even when the wrapping is plain white tissue, there are now ways of doing up the package to make it interesting. We've shown you two of these ways in the package pile.

If you [illegible] simply [illegible]

Matching of Ribbons

If your paper [illegible] in a small neat design [illegible] go grand [illegible] with [illegible] splashy bows and [illegible] ends of banding.

If the paper [illegible] colors, like Joseph's coat, match your ribbon to the dominating color. If the paper is a solid one or two-color design, sometimes a ribbon contrast makes it more interesting, though the package, too, is sure to look fine if the ribbon matches one of the paper colors.

The paper ribbon that's [illegible] quite dramatic [illegible] this paper ribbon [illegible] plain colored packages. The patterned paper ribbon [illegible] help dress up the plain package.

And a sprig of real holly caught into the bow of any package just about doubles its decorative effect.

Monday: Amos Parrish shows how fashionable coats are warm without being bulky.

chivalrous to tell her where she gets off. That's all."

Wilda said, distantly: "It isn't anything to me how much he talks to Myrtle."

"Now, now. You can't fool this child. Personally, I think you'd both make a wonderful couple."

"He hasn't said—"

"He will. But come to think of it, if Myrtle and her kind are too 'easy,' I believe you're a bit too stand-offish. That is your trouble."

Would He Call?

Wilda Was Wondering

"We're only good friends. That's all. As for my being stand-offish, Coral, you know I couldn't stand for free-for-all petting and necking."

"Like the fair Myrtle? She's a fraud. But the whole town's got her number.

"Then what do you mean?"

"Don't bite my nose off. I'm hinting that you might give your beau a teeny bit more encouragement."

"How? In what way?"

"Darling, I'm not Beatrice Fairfax, nor yet Laura Jean Libby!"

Wilda bit her lips while her friend added: Not a highbrow or an iceberg . . . you aren't exactly that . . . but if you liked anybody a lot, your pride would lead you on to camouflage . . . to act so distant. You see, Wilda, you're terribly independent. You're adaptable and quick, and clever as they come, but your instinct to please goes into your work too much and there isn't enough of it when it comes to your relations with men. That's where boneheads like Myrtle Gleeson and Bess Avory get away with murder. They practice on anything and everything in pants . . . they study their effects . . . and get by on hardly any gray matter at all, because they always keep their hand in."

"But you said a minute ago . . . about being 'easy' . . ?"

"Of course they're easy, and that's against them. And Myrtle overdoes the languid act, and she never can hold 'em. But her instinct to please is there . . . and even though I'm a dyed-in-the-wool old maid of 24, I can see that instinct's right if you want to land a man."

"Who said I wanted to—"

"Now, now, Miss Prickles, hold your horses. I only said that Logan Townsend was wild about you and that you might give him a little more encouragement."

"Oh, he's run after enough—"

"But not by the right woman."

"Right nobody!" Wilda felt nettled, and yet—because of Coral's assurance—oddly elated.

"I tell you the girls are always calling him up and trying to make dates with him, and—"

"And you aren't going to swell their number?"

"Why should I? I'm going to Europe."

"Then if you let a fine chap like Townsend slip through your fingers, it's nobody's business." And Coral drew her lips together and whistled portentously.

Would Logan Townsend call her up [illegible] to Coral's party?

That w[illegible] volved in the mind of Wilda.

Logan knew that Coral and she were close friends. Knew that Wilda was bound to [illegible] that he was going to Coral's on Saturday evening.

A day later he did telephone. But Wilda did not hear of it [illegible] some hours after.

He'd call again? He wouldn't let a little fact like her being out of the office stop [illegible].

But all next day he did not ring. And at five o'clock she picked up the instrument and gave his office number.

He had just left, she was informed. In the little two [illegible] flat he shared with [illegible] there was no 'phone [illegible] to wait until next morning.

That was a Friday. Got [illegible] pretty near Coral's party [illegible]

She got him on the line after. Because of her keen feeling for him she knew that her voice was stiff and awkward.

"You called me up two days ago. I just wondered if it was anything important."

"Well [illegible] he was equally embarr[illegible]

And then he said brusquely: "I left a message for you asking you to call me back. You didn't."

"They didn't tell me. But if it was urgent, I thought you'd have called again—"

"Sure thing." He gave a [illegible] laugh. There was another pause. Then he said someth[illegible] expecting she was awfully busy getting ready for her trip to E[illegible]

The Beauty Box -:- By Helen Follett

NATURE GIVES no color guarantee with blonde hair. Sometimes it stays golden, again it doesn't. The girl who worries over a tarnished halo can regain her bright yaller top by the use of peroxide, applied discreetly to the roots. A few drops of ammonia are added to hasten the bleaching process. One must be careful with ammonia. It is that chemical, not the peroxide, that changes the character of the hair shaft, giving it a jutelike texture.

Orange and apricot rouge have worn out their welcome. New shades of cheeks and lips match natural tones. Makeup is not banished; it is being controlled, applied with more skill and discretion. Which is as it should be.

Some of the dear gals don't eat their oatmeal; they cook it and put it on their faces to clear away the blackheads. If there are freckles as well, lemon juice or peroxide is added to the cereal. The peak is applied fairly warm. It is a bit messy, but what matters that, in the great and glorious cause of pulchritude? Apply over the washbowl; let the flakes fall where they may. Retain on the skin for fifteen minutes, lave away with tepid water, rinse with cold, sponge the face with witch hazel.

Every head of hair has moulting periods, times when more than the usual number of hairs depart. They come usually in spring and autumn. During these sessions, the scalp needs vitalizing massage, steady pressure with finger-tips outspread to move the scalp away from the skull. A simple tonic is castor oil thinned with [illegible] of alcohol. Part the hair, apply the oil along the parting, begin the pummeling. Brushing is helpful. Every hair that the brush removes is already dead.

Lipsticks still are working, though not so strenuously. When applying stretch the lips wide and flat, so the rosy cosmetic will go on evenly. Touch the inner surfaces of the lips. Begin in the center, helping the coloring to do a faint away as it nears the lip corners. The girl with the large mouth had better chuck the lipstick, which calls attention to dimensions that are not according to the Cupid bow pattern.

Not all teeth and gums will endure a toothbrush of heavy bristles. If gums are pale and bleed easily, it is best to use a brush that is fairly soft. Manipulate the bristles away from the gums, which need friction to keep the blood streams active. Three times a day, directly after each meal, is the dentist's orders. Business [illegible] keep a toothbrush at the office for the after luncheon scrubbing.

It is seldom that a woman is satisfied with the [illegible] of her nose. Yet few noses are disfiguring. Powdering the feminine nose is almost an occupation with the universal sister[illegible] When the surface is excessively oily it can be dulled by laving with a saturated solution of boric acid.

Does Mellon Today Favor Good Stocks?

Secretary Urged Buying of Bonds Before Big Boom Came to Grief

By B. C. FORBES

New York, Nov. 29—Secretary Mellon wisely advised the purchase of bonds quite some time before the stock boom collapsed last year. He recognized that stocks were then on dangerous levels.

B. C. Forbes

Will Secretary Mellon, if he now regards them as cheap, please come out with a statement recommending the purchase of choice stocks?

It is hardly conceivable that the farseeing Secretary of the Treasury can still look upon stocks as dangerous. But he has not yet, so far as I know, publicly changed his "buy bonds" advice. Those who then followed his counsel are morally entitled to fresh guidance if Secretary Mellon has altered his judgment concerning the attractiveness of well-selected stocks at current levels.

Having proffered advice to buy bonds when he was convinced, as most judges of investments were—that they were more desirable than stocks, is there not resting on the able head of the Treasury a responsibility to those who did as he suggested? In other words, would it not be eminently fitting for Mr. Mellon to indicate that conditions have now changed and that there is no longer occasion to boycott stocks—that is, provided he sincerely deems that stocks have descended from unreasonable to reasonable levels?

An announcement from the most influential financial figure in the United States could not fail to have potent influence.

Mr. Secretary, you told us last year to buy bonds. What should we buy now?

* * *

This column was thoroughly in sympathy with Secretary Mellon's cautious attitude last year. But for months the three-ringed circus went merrily on after danger signals could be clearly discerned by those trained to recognize them.

It will be recalled, however, that hundreds of millions of new stock, also hundreds of millions of "rights" to buy stocks, were being issued by all kinds of corporations and companies, aided and abetted by their financial advisers. Also, Wall Street houses as a rule were whooping things up. Every possible maneuver calculated to stimulate speculative whoopee was indulged in. "The thing to do was to buy stocks, buy more stocks, buy still more stocks and get rich."

Now that even the best stocks are selling fifty or a hundred dollars, many of them at less than half their 1929 peak, how many financial magnates, how many Wall Street houses, are recommending purchases as enthusiastically as they recommended purchases when dizzy quotations ruled?

Surely, it is indisputable that shares which were attractive as long term investments at unprecedentedly high prices are still more attractive as investments at unprecedentedly low prices. But does the country resound with exhortations to "get aboard" now?

* * *

Despite the bearishness which has so long prevailed, not a few investors have exercised their own judgment and made stock purchases. For example, 31 store chains now have 272,808 stockholders against 172,707 for 32 chains a year ago. Incidentally, 49 chain companies report a gain of 20½ per cent in sales last month as compared with the previous month.

Yet as Luigi Criscuolo, of Merrill, Lynch & Company, points out in the Chain Store Review, there has been a decline of nearly 60 per cent in the average price of 35 chain store stocks, sending them back to the 1925 level.

"A comparative analysis," he says, "of equities of railroads, public utilities, industrial and chain stores shows that in a selected group of 35 chain store companies the capital structure consists of 6.6 per cent funded debt, 10 per cent preferred stock, 50.1 per cent common stock and 33.3 per cent surplus. For industrials the ratios are, respectively, 9.3, 11, 44.7 and 35 per cent. For utilities, 35, 22.8, 30.3 and 11.9 per cent. For railroads, 42.5, 4.9, 28.7 and 23.9 per cent.

"Chain store companies have been largely financed through plowing back of surplus earnings and through issuance of common stock, hence their common stocks have the largest portion of the asset equities."

* * *

We're queer, we humans. We don't want things until other people want them. After stocks start booming again, we will tumble over ourselves to buy them. Remember the Wall Street adage?

"The crowd is always wrong."

POWER AFLOAT BRINGS ISSUE OF CONTROL

By FRANK H. MELOON

Several days ago we called attention to the fact that Maine had blazed a new industrial trail by utilizing a vessel equipped as a power plant at Bucksport. It transpires that the Public Service Co. of New Hampshire is planning to provide dockage facilities for a similar plant at Portsmouth and Dover. The boat, however, is to be owned by the New England Public Service Co. and officials believe it would not be under the control of any state, but regarded as "of the high seas."

* * *

It would appear to the average person that, if the emergency calling for use of the floating power generating plant arose, the officials would be glad to see it in commission regardless of the red tape of authority. When the municipal electric facilities at Tacoma, Wash., failed, the authorities were glad enough to have the Secretary of the Navy cut the aforesaid "red tape" and make possible utilization of a United States mother ship for aircraft.

Prof. Elihu Thomson, head of the Thomson Research Laboratory of the General Electric Co. in Lynn, inventor accredited with more than 700 patents, will attain a financial goal probably achieved by no other inventor when he is presented with a half-million dollar purse by Ambrose Swasey, telescope maker, on Dec. 2. Besides this he will be awarded honorary membership in the American Society of Mechanical Engineers the following day.

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

A more active season for alcohol consumption is at hand. October was a month of good business, and with the colder weather the demand should continue to increase. Automobile owners rushed to buy alcohol for use as an anti-freeze over the holiday, and that demand should continue over the week-end if the cold weather persists.

Thatcher Will Cover Dividend

It is certain that Thatcher Manufacturing will cover its dividend this year, and is likely to do so by a good margin. The company has been doing comparatively well in this year of general depression. Its business has been reported recently as running only about 10 per cent under that of last year.

Thatcher's trade does not fluctuate widely, as the demand for milk bottles varies only slightly. The advent of paper containers is not considered a serious threat to the company because general delivery requires glass bottles from a cost angle. One bottle can be used a great many times, while a paper container, though costing less originally, is only good for one filling.

Brooklyn Union Gas Favored

When certain stocks have been sold down to a 5 per cent yield basis they have encountered rather good buying. That was true of Brooklyn Union Gas recently. As a result of its action, several interests have been recommending the issue to customers for purchases on a scale during market reactions. The company publishes earnings only once a year and few have been willing to make a prediction on its 1930 results. It is pointed out that considerable will depend on what further operating economies were possible this year.

Subway Contracts to General Signal

General Railway Signal has obtained a contract from the New York city board of transportation for $2,177,000 of subway work. In addition, the railroads have been ordering installations at a good rate, and everything points to the company finishing the year with substantial orders on its books, possibly totaling more than those of a year ago.

The current quarter probably will prove the most profitable of the year for General Railway Signal. It may be good enough to carry the net income above the showing made in 1929, as the nine months' results were only slightly below those of the corresponding period last year.

Mathieson Alkali's Earnings Prospect

Mathieson Alkali will be aided by any improvement in the textile industry, and according to reports various textile mills recently have been increasing schedule. These plants are important users of Mathieson's products. Other large consumers include the paper and oil industries.

Estimates have been made that earnings in the current year will be between $2.50 and $2.75 a share. They compare with $3.31 in 1929, but would be considered satisfactory under present business conditions. The stock pays $2 annually and is selling to yield more than most chemical manufacturing organizations.

Du Pont Interest in United Aircraft

It was noticeable that although a strong bear clique kept selling United Aircraft in volume, the stock resisted much better than the general list. According to a report which could not be confirmed, the du Pont interests, who dominate General Motors Corp., have been buyers of United Aircraft shares. It is recalled that General Motors approached Aircraft some months ago with a proposition to exchange one and one-half shares Motors for each share Aircraft, but the offer was declined. Now Aircraft is selling below Motors in the market. It is known that the buying of Aircraft of late has been well informed.

Readjustment of Oliver Equipment

Bankers are reported working on a plan for recapitalization and reorganization of Oliver Farm Equipment.

Pool Active in Baldwin

Strength in Baldwin Locomotive in the face of softness elsewhere in this week's market emphasized the manipulative character of its recent action.

Vanadium Sells Off Easily

Decline in Vanadium this week confirmed opinion that its recent display of strength was almost exclusively the result of pool activity.

American Can Profit Record

American Can recently enjoyed the most profitable month in its history.

Allied Chemical Plant Investment

Bears selling Allied Chemical were broadcasting reports of possible adverse influence of Muscle Shoals legislation on the company's large new-plant investment. However, this company enjoys very capable and far-seeing management.

Remington-Rand Pool Activity

Pool in Remington-Rand seemingly was disinclined to oppose the market this week. Present group in the stock was identified with the issue when it sold materially higher, and on the last occasion its operations were purely for liquidation purposes.

Anaconda Meets New Buying

It was evident that Anaconda was meeting increases demand as it approaches the former lowest prices.

Steel Is Watched as Market Index

Attitude of the most powerful interests will be reflected in the degree of support furnished Steel common should it approach its former low of 138.

EDISON PLANS TO SPEND A MILLION

The Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston is to expend more than a million dollars on an addition to its new steam heating plant in Kneeland st., and distribution lines to care for additional steam heat customers.

The new steam heating plant of the Edison Company was put into service less than two months ago and it has already become evident that more boiler capacity will be needed for the winter of 1931-32.

The present plant consists of a building housing two boilers each with a capacity of 250,000 pounds of steam per hour. The new addition will involve an addition to the present building, with space for two boilers, only one of which, however, will be installed at first.

The plans are now under way and it is expected that actual construction work will commence about the first of January, 1931, and the plant completed and in operation by December of next year.

This will provide work for a considerable number of men and will aid in relieving the unemployment situation in Boston during the coming winter.

Of the million dollars to be expended, approximately $750,000 will be on the building and boiler and the remainder on new mains through the streets.

Marlboro Power to Lower Its Rates

Marlboro Electric Co., which recently became affiliated with New England Power Association, filed with the Department of Public Utilities a general revision of its rate structure which will mean net savings of $40,000 a year to customers in Marlboro, Southboro, Northboro, Westboro, Berlin and Bolton.

Volume of Business Gains Nearly 20 P. C.

Washington, Nov. 29—An upturn of nearly 20 per cent in the volume of the nation's business, as indicated by bank debits outside New York City, was reported for the week ended November 22 by the Commerce Department today. Standing at 123 per cent of the three-year average of 1923-1925, the highest level of the month was reached.

For the first time in several weeks there was no decline in the production of steel ingots. Bituminous coal and petroleum production remained practically unchanged, while lumber production showed a slight falling off.

WHOLESALE PRICES

After holding for several weeks the general level of wholesale prices fell off a little more than 1 per cent from the preceding week and was some 12 per cent below the 1929 level.

Building contracts in 37 states, after making a large gain in the preceding week, fell off 5 per cent, but were only slightly under the total for the corresponding week of a year ago.

Business failures were more numerous than in either prior period.

Main interest in business circles now centers in the probable developments beyond the short period remaining this year, due to the absence of new phases of outstanding prominence, Dun's Review states in its weekly review of trade and industry. The outstanding feature of the week, according to Bradstreet's Journal, from a distributive trade standpoint, has been the spreading of cool weather over most most of the country, with light to heavy snows or freezing weather, or both, in the northern tier of states and heavy snow cover and zero temperatures in Rocky Mountains and Northwestern areas. This has been a help to sales of many kinds of wearing apparel, the review says.

Variations in the volume of current trade largely reflect seasonal forces, continued Dun's Review, and are not of great importance, the really significant movements being those with a fundamental bearing on future trends.

The recent moderate gains in some quarters have afforded a measure of encouragement, the Review points out, but an appraisal of general conditions clearly shows that widespread recovery is yet to be achieved. The Review continues in part:

"In a statistical way, comparisons with the records a year ago continue to be unfavorable, but much has been accomplished since that time in the elimination of weak spots, and in this respect the outlook is improved. Annual inventorying, soon to begin or in progress now, is being counted upon to disclose a stronger position in many instances. The action of security markets has been more reassuring, deflation of speculative loans has been drastic and money rates are exceptionally easy."

SLOWER TENDENCY

Bradstreet's Journal, in its summary of trade and industrial developments, continues in part:

"In industry there has been the usual tendency to slow down the pace of general industry, this aside from what constructive activities giving work to unemployed labor were possible in the face of the advent of cold weather and the completion of a great deal of the year's agricultural operations, notably late cotton picking, corn husking, which has been about finished, and late fall plowing."

Hartford Company Declares "Extra"

Hartford Steam Boiler Inspection & Insurance Co. declared a special extra dividend of 20 cents, payable December 1 to stock of record November 26. This brings total payments for the year to $1.80, the same as in 1929.

BOSTON STOCK PRICES STEADY ON WEEK-END

Prices were steady in week-end trading on the Boston Stock Exchange.

The most active issues were generally higher with American Telephone, Kreuger & Toll, East Butte and United Founders all showing fractional gains.

Boston Edison was up a point at 242. Quincy Mining added a point at 9. United Fruit rose 1⅛ at 7⅝. Hathaway preferred at 100 was up a point, while the "B" issue gained 2 at 17.

United Shoe was a point lower at 55½. General Alloys was down a point at 8. Boston & Maine prior preferred was off 1⅝ at 105½.

Business conditions in the majority of the towns and cities in the Green Mountain State served by the Central Vermont Railway are equally as good as they were in the same period last year, according to reports of the company's agents. In some of the communities unemployment exists, but conditions on the whole are described as "healthy."

But little unemployment exists at St. Albans, the headquarters of the railway. This is due to a great extent to the full time operation of Central Vermont's car and locomotive shops. Inbound rail shipments are in excess of those for 1929, while conditions in general are about the same this year as last.

At Winooski, the lime industry is reported in a healthy condition with business a trifle better than in 1929 while there are indications of better times in the woolen business. There are also indications of increased activities in the plants manufacturing radio cabinets.

P. & W. Va. Pays

Pittsburgh & West Virginia Railway declared regular quarterly dividend of $1.50, payable Jan. 31.

LEADERS ARE FIRM IN WALL ST. CLOSING

New York, Nov. 29—Leading issues displayed a firm tone in closing dealings on the New York Stock Exchange today. Today's was the first firm closing of the week.

Trading was extremely dull. The day's turnover of about 650,000 shares was the smallest for a two-hour session since August, but gains of a point or two were numerous among prominent shares.

WOOLWORTH FEATURE

Woolworth was a firm feature, rising a point with the purchase of a block of 15,400 shares, and moving up another point thereafter. Allied Chemical and Goodyear made similar progress.

There were a few declines of 1 to 3 points among the rails and utilities in the first hour, but these were largely cancelled by the close.

Such issues as U. S. Steel, New Haven, Bethlehem, American Telephone, North American, Public Service of New Jersey, Kennecott, Anaconda, New York Central, Southern Pacific, Westinghouse Electric, Air Reduction, Corn Products and American Can rose about a point or more.

Much of the buying appeared to be the closing out of short contracts, but the further reduction of $63,000,000 in brokers' loans was favorably regarded.

BUSINESS NOW BETTER

The week-end business reports showed some improvement, especially in the trades and industries favorably affected by colder weather.

Retail stores and mail-order houses reported an increasing buying demand for holiday goods and clothing of various kinds. Cotton and bonds moved down the price scale in the week-end market, but grain was steady.

Losses of 1 to 3 points in the initial sales of the railroad stocks were based on the continuance of unfavorable reports of October earnings and November car loadings.

Having lost the greater part of last week's rally, the stock market has apparently entered another period of dull, professional trading, in which the process of "waiting for something to turn up" will be repeated.

Signs of expansion in the steel trade, when they come, will be accepted as the market's best "bull tip."

Automobile stocks made a better showing in the late trading, but on the whole the market displayed a sluggish tone, with trading confined to a few of the favorites.

SPECTATOR'S VIEWS GIVEN

There seems to be no doubt but that pessimism is again rife in the financial district. The further decrease of $63,000,000 in brokers' loans during the past week shows definitely that the outside public has been a seller on the recovery rather than a buyer. While in the long run this strengthening of the technical position will reap its reward for the patient holder, the apathetic attitude of the non-professional makes the course of the bull pool operator one of increasing difficulty and one upon which he will hardly venture with the odds so heavily against him.

Recovery In Sight

Constructive sources point out, however, that with the volume of turnover holding below two million shares, the decline has at no time this week been able to pick up momentum. Signs of wholesale liquidation like that in October have been lacking. Without such technical market trouble and with outside news little changing in character, these interests believe that it seems more reasonable to look for moderate recoveries than for important further declines.

Rail Traffic Drops

While market observers hold to the opinion that industrial stocks are within reach of their bottoms, the view toward rail stocks is decidedly bearish. It is pointed out that freight traffic showed an annual increase between 1890 and 1920 of 7 per cent, the annual rate of increase from 1921 to 1929, inclusive, was but 1 per cent. Passenger traffic increased during the 30 years ended with 1920 at an annual rate of 6 per cent, but in the nine years since 1920 it has shown an actual shrinkage of 3 per cent annually. Average receipts a ton mile of traffic hauled, declined more than 15 per cent between 1920 and 1929, with a resulting cumulative loss to the roads of more than $5,700,000,000.

Production Way Down

It is not generally realized perhaps that the index of industrial production in October, 1930, was below the lowest level usually reached in times of deep depression, as compared with comparable statistics running back to 1878. It has been estimated that the index of industrial production and trade in October was 75 per cent of normal, compared with 80 per cent in March, 1921; 82 per cent in November, 1914; 81 per cent in March, 1908; 77 per cent in October, 1893; 78 per cent in 1893; 82 per cent in 1884 and 80 per cent in December, 1878.

Bond Market Shows Fresh Irregularity

New York, Nov. 29—Fresh irregularity was shown in the bond market today. Fluctuations in the railroad section were narrower but the sharp recessions yesterday attracted little buying and active issues were irregularly lower. The tone of utilities was somewhat improved.

Brown Boveri's Progress Is Good

American Brown Boveri Co., Inc., has made satisfactory progress in the electrical field during the past year, in view of the general business recession, and is now in strong position. The company was organized in May, 1929, as a wholly-owned subsidiary of American Brown Boveri Electric Corporation, to take over all its electrical activities both at Camden, N. J., and of the Condit Electrical Manufacturing Corporation at Boston—now a wholly-owned subsidiary of the American Brown Boveri Co., Inc.

Peruvian National Interest Received

J. & W. Seligman & Co. and the National City Bank of New York, fiscal agents for the Republic of Peru, have received the entire amount required for interest and sinking fund payments due up to Dec. 1, 1930, on Peruvian national loan bonds, first and second series. Of the first series, $290,000 have been drawn for redemption on Dec. 1.

NEEDS BONDS

A. M., Waverly—I am a wage-earner and have saved $2,000, of which I want to invest $1,000. How about Bethlehem Steel?

Ans.—Bethlehem Steel common is speculative, because of irregular dividend record. In May, 1929, after a lapse of four years, dividends were resumed at $4 a share, increased to current $6 annual rate November, 1929. In 1929 net income was equivalent to $11.01 a share, contrasted with $6.53 in 1928. For nine months ended September 30 earnings were $5.09 a share. Unofficial estimate for last quarter is 65 cents a share, or less than dividend requirements. In your circumstances you should be conservative. If you want really to invest $1,000 (and we do not think $2,000 is too much for the savings bank in times like these), buy bonds. Investing the sum of $1,000 in Greater New York Suffolk Title and Guarantee 5½s will bring $55 annually. They are guaranteed as to principal and interest.

RETIRING FUNDED DEBT

L. O., Hingham—I have had excellent advice from you on former occasions. What do you think of a purchase of Gold Dust?

Ans.—Gold Dust is a large manufacturer of cleansing and food products and earnings have been good. Dividends have been paid by the present company from 1927; current $2.50 rate from November, 1929. In 1929 earnings were $4.06 a share, contrasted with $3.71 in 1928 and $6.02 in 1927 on a smaller capitalization. During current year $9,600,000 of funded debt has been retired and entire outstanding amount of $5,282,000 is to be eliminated May, 1931. At recent levels the stock is selling on a basis to yield 7 per cent. What securities have you? How much do you plan to spend?

MUST DECIDE

R. A., Waltham—Shall I hold or sell some International Telephone and Telegraph bought much above current levels?

Ans.—We do not know fuure prices and neither does anyone else. The decline in International Telephone and Telegraph is due to lower earnings, and to political disturbances in countries in which the company operates. In the six months ended June 30, earnings of $1.04 a share contrasted with dividends of $1 for that period. Unofficial estimate for full year indicates the $2 dividend covered by a slim margin. Net last year equaled $3.01 a share. In spite of the discouraging outlook, the management has stated no immediate change is contemplated in the dividend rate.

OMITS DIVIDEND

L. L., Boston—I own thirty-five shares Miami Copper at higher levels. What is your opinion of it?

Ans. Miami Copper is a speculation. Despite splendid cash resources, directors voted to omit quarterly dividend of 37½ cents a share expected November 1, in view of unprecedentedly low prices of copper. Last quarterly payment was 37½ cents a share August 15, a reduction from 50 cents quarterly paid since May, 1929. In 1929 earnings were $5.11 a share, compared with $2.47 in 1928 and $1.52 in 1927. How long you must wait for a recovery is conjectural.

KEEP LARGER RESERVE

W. C., Weymouth—I am a wage earner, with dependents, and have saved $4,200, which I want to invest in good bonds. Please advise.

Ans.—In your circumstances, we think you should keep at least $1,200 cash in the savings bank for emergencies. With the other $3,000, invest $1,500 in Prudence Company 5½s and a similar amount in Lawyers' Title and Guaranty 5s. They are guaranteed as to principal and interest. Annual income is $157.

SPECULATIVE STOCK

E. H., Quincy—I am a reader of your paper and want your opinion of a purchase of Commercial Solvents.

Ans.—Commercial Solvents derives most of its business from the automobile industry. Under present conditions the stock is speculative. Dividends have been paid on the common since 1927. The regular annual rate on the present stock, issued in ten-for-one split in October, 1929, is $1 a share. In addition stockholders receive 2 per cent quarterly in stock.

PENN. IS PAYING AT BEST MARK

Checks for the 193d consecutive dividend of the Boston-listed Pennsylvania Railroad, the largest in the company's history, are being mailed to 233,372 stockholders throughout the world, in the railroad's regular quarterly disbursements to its shareholders.

More than $13,000,000, representing 2 per cent on the outstanding stock, which is at the rate of 8 per cent annually, will be paid by the railroad to the owners of its property, among whom are many thousands of its own employes. This payment brings the total dividends which Pennsylvania Railroad stockholders have received to the sum of $981,961,072.62.

Another new high record in the number of the roads' stockholders was reached in the present month, with 232,491 shareholders registered on the company's books.

This an increase of more than 20,000 over last month's record and an advance of 44,444 in the number of Pennsylvania Railroad shareholders since November of last year.

While much of this increase in Pennsylvania holders is a result of investments buying by the general public, a large part of it is directly traceable to the allotments of stock to employes two yearrs ago on the partail payment plan, installments on which are now being completed.

Irving Trust Named Munroe Co. Receiver

New York, Nov. 29—Appointment of the Irving Trust Company as receiver in equity for John Munroe and Company, commercial and foreign exchange brokers, with offices at 100 Broadway and in Paris, Cannes and Pau, France, was made permanent by Federal Judge Frank J. Coleman after a brief hearing in a courtroom in the Woolworth Building.

Liabilities of the brokerage house total $5,910,000 against assets of approximately $7,100,000.

The naming of a temporary receiver was the result of a petition filed by Charles W. Greenough, of Boston, a creditor to the extent of $4271.

Corporate Profit Study Is Given

The 250 industrial, utility and railroad corporations for which comparable earnings figures are available for the past three years, reported for the first nine months of this year a decrease in net profits of 33.2 per cent from the 1929 period and a decline of 15.7 per cent from the 1928 period, Standard Statistics Co. reports.

Corporations Buying for Future Needs, Says Dodge Corp.

F. W. Dodge Corp. today announces it finds numbers of private corporations taking advantage of low current prices. It states:

"Corporations are definitely anticipating their future requirements, and, convinced that they have little to gain by waiting, are letting their contracts and authorizing construction work to proceed."

CURB MARKET UTILITIES UP

New York, Nov. 29—Curb stocks edged up slightly in dull week-end activity today, as the failure of bearing professionals to bring out further liquidation influenced a general wave of short covering in the late dealings.

Utilities were irregularly higher with Electric Bond & Share rallying a point from its low. Other issues to display firm tendencies included American Superpower, American Light & Traction, Eastern States Power and Niagara Hudson Power.

Cities Service fluctuated narrowly. Oils and investment trusts were generally neglected and prices showed but normal changes in the accepted leaders of these groups.

Newmont Mining spurted briskly in the final half hour in sympathy with a run-up in the copper shares on the big board for a gain of 1⅝ points.

Specialties were quiet with the best advances noted in copper—Bessemer up 3 points and Glen Alden Coal up one.

Steel's Average Prices Unchanged

Dow, Jones & Co.'s average price for eight important iron and steel products remained unchanged from preceding week at $44.42 a gross ton, Pittsburgh, based on Iron Age quotations.

The present figure is the low for 1930, against low of $49.88 for 1929 in third week of December. The Jan. 2 figure is this year's high, against high for 1929 of $51.25 in second week in May. The 1929 average was $50.61 and 1928 average was $49.47.

Parts-Accessory Sales Holding Up

New York, Nov. 29 (AP)—Operations in the parts-accessory industry are holding up favorably and October business of makers of accessories and parts for the replacement trade actually ran ahead of September, the Motor and Equipment Association reports. Approximately the same rate of activity has been maintained this month. Supplies of original equipment to the car and truck makers reported October shipments only slightly below September.

Prices Unchanged in Boston Wool Sales

Boston office of Department of Agriculture says:

"Trading during the past week was confined largely to moderate quantities of 58s, 60s and finer grades of territory wools. Sales reported were made at prices unchanged as compared with quotations of the previous week. Immediate deliveries were requested on the bulk of the business closed."

PORT OF BOSTON

Hundreds of visitors were shown through the Leviathan, guests of the United States Lines, when the fleet flagship was given over to public inspection yesterday.

Hundreds more will be entertained when the giant ship is opened today between 10 o'clock and 12 o'clock.

Repairs on the big liner are progressing rapidly and every indication points to her being ready to sail for New York tomorrow.

GLOBE GIRDLER

Bringing Boston importers cargo from the Philipines, the Orient, Egypt and Mediterranean ports, the S. S. President Johnson, of the Dollar Line, ended her sixth round the world voyage at this port yesterday. She docked at Hoosac docks. She left New York Aug. 14 and made a call on the way back, discharging passengers and cargo at the metropolis port. She will leave here for New York, Sunday.

CHRISTMAS TOYS

Christmas toys made up much of the cargo of the Natirar, Yankee Line, which docked at Hoosac docks from Hamburg and Bremen. Engine trouble delayed the voyage.

POLICE BOAT SOLD

Regarded as one of the finest models of her size in Boston harbor the old police boat Guardian has been sold by the City of Boston to Mark Angel for $900. When her boilers were condemned, the police department laid her up at Constitution wharf and used one of the fireboats. The new owner bought her on speculation stating she was too good to scrap and needs only a new boiler to put her in first class condition.

BERMUDA BOUND

Bound for Bermuda on the motorship Bermuda of the Furness-Bermuda line, which is scheduled to sail today, are many prominent Bostonians. Dr. W. T. Porter of Boston will open the Porter estate "Dover House," as one of the members of the Mid-Ocean Club, a group of vacationists with winter homes in Bermuda. Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Switzer, Jr., of Boston, and L. A. Tworoger manager of the Princess Hotel in Hamilton and the Hotel Aspinwall in Lexington Mass., are sailing.

NAUTICAL ALUMNI

The annual meeting and dinner of the Massachusetts Nautical School Alumni Association will be held at the Boston Yacht Club Rowe's wharf, tonight. Joseph E. Sheedy, executive vice-president of the United States Lines, and Capt. Osborne McKay, Panama Canal pilot, will be guests.

CARGO SAFE

Crippled two weeks ago with a broken propeller hub, the Angeles, American Republics Line, towed 1500 miles into Hampton Roads by the coast guard cutter Carrabassett, will arrive here Wednesday or Thursday. She was bound for Boston from Buenos Aires, Montevideo and Santos.

LAW CHANGES DISCUSSED

Co-operation in stock fraud prosecutions and adjustment of procedure as a result of the repeal of the Baby Volstead act were discussed today at the regular quarterly meeting of district attorneys of Massachusetts with Atty. Gen. Joseph E. Warner, in the office of the latter at the State House.

Because of the repeal of the Baby Volstead act prosecutions for exposing and sale of liquor will in the future be made under the old State law, and in the opinion of the prosecutors this law is sufficient to bring about convictions.

Other things discussed, according to the attorney general included matters relating to procedure, return of fugitives from justice to this State and condition of criminal dockets. According to the attorney general no general increase in crime was noted. He said that only one capital case is now awaiting trial.

Those present were as follows:

Southeastern: Dist.-Atty. Winfield M. Wilbar, Brockton; Asst. Dist.-Attys. John V. Sullivan, of Middleboro; Ermund R. Dewing, of Wellesley.

Northwestern: Dist.-Atty. Charles Fairhurst, Greenfield; Dist.-Atty.-elect Joseph T. Bartlett, Greenfield.

Eastern: Dist. Atty. William G. Clark, Gloucester; Dist. Atty.-elect Hugh Cregg, Lawrence; Assist. Dist. Atty.-elect Charles Green of Salem.

Southern: Dist. Atty. William C. Crossley, Fall River.

Western: Dist. Atty. Charles Clason, Springfield; Dist. Atty.-elect Thomas Moriarty, of Springfield.

Suffolk: Dist. Atty. William J. Foley, Boston.

Middle: Dist. Atty. Edwin G. Norman, Worcester.

BOARDERS FLEE CONCORD FIRE

Fire from an overheated stove drove six persons from a farm boarding house on the estate of Anson Wheeler at Nine-Acre Corner, Concord, early today, the occupants fleeing in night clothing.

All Concord and West Concord apparatus responded to a general alarm and saved several other buildings which were threatened.

Mrs. Ernest Theakston awoke to find the house filled with smoke and aroused her husband and 10-year-old daughter. Theakston awakened three farm hands.

Damage is estimated at $2000.

Hyde Park Churches in Tercentenary Play

A group of Hyde Park churches have joined in a tercentenary event which promises to fill the First Methodist Church to its doors tomorrow evening. A pageant of early days written by Eleanor Wood will depict Indians, Puritans, Baptists, Episcopalians, and Quakers. Much of the language is taken directly from authentic histories. Baptists of the city will reproduce the scene of the departure of Roger Williams to found Providence. Quakers will give the Mary Dyer episode when that martyr was sent to be hung on Boston Common. Unitarians have rehearsed the episode representing Chief Chickatabot signing a treaty with Governor Winthrop.

Episcopals and Baptists appear before Governor Endicott for censure and banishment.

The Rev. George M. Bailey assumes the garb of John Eliot, and will preach to the redskins, parts taken by his own people. John Cotton will be played by the Presbyterian minister, the Rev. Earl Van Zandt.

City Stores Co. Net Equals 32c a Share

City Stores Company for the quarter ended October 31 reports a net profit of $415,174 after reserve for depreciation, contingencies, minority interest and Federal taxes, as compared with $589,013 in the October quarter of 1929.

For the nine months net profit totaled $726,978, equivalent to 47 cents a common share, as compared with $1,001,361, or 72 cents a share in the first nine months of last year.

Willys Report for Quarter Is Given

New York, Nov. 29—Willys-Overland, Inc., reports for quarter ended Sept. 30 net loss of $2,531,197 after depreciation, interest, ordinary taxes, etc., against profit of $119,381 before federal taxes in the third quarter of 1929.

Town Financing

Swampscott will receive bids until Dec. 5 for $100,000 notes payable Nov. 10, 1931.

CHURCH NEWS

On the radio WEEI tomorrow afternoon, 2:30, the new rector of Trinity Church will speak on "Why I Am an Episcopalian." This is the first of a series to be given Sunday afternoons.

Trinity Church will hold a grand parish party at Ford Hall next Wednesday evening. A reception will begin at 6 o'clock and every member of the church is cordially invited to come and get acquainted with every other member.

COMMON CAUSE

Dr. William Shaw McCallum, who has made a study of the priest Rasputin, will address the Common Cause Forum on this remarkable character tomorrow evening in Franklin Union Hall. This study, says Mr. McCallum, is intended to give the public an insight into the life of this "False Christ," whose influence with the Czar and his family aroused much of the opposition which resulted in the overthrow of the Russian dynasty. One hour of the evening will be devoted to free discussion.

HOMER GRIMES

A three weeks' mission will be closed tomorrow at the Highland Congregational Church, Somerville. The Rev. Homer Grimes, who has conducted the mission, will conclude with three services. At 10:30 he will preach on "The Deeper Things of Life"; at 3:30, "Is Jesus Christ Coming to Earth Again?"; and at 7 p. m., "The Universal Language." Mr. Grimes will go to Rockland, Me., for a similar mission.

"WHY HE LOST HIS JOB"

The Rev. J. Whitcomb Brougher, pastor of Tremont Temple Baptist Church, will preach tomorrow morning on "How he kept his job and got a better one."

In the evening Dr. Brougher will preach on mind reading, "Is it possible to transfer thought?"

In the evening he will answer the questions: "Does mind reading enter into fortune telling?" and "Is telepathy an explanation of many of the phenomena of spiritism?" Special music of the day will be solos by Mrs. Helen Westgate Lamson, selections by the Temple Male Quartet and anthems by the chorus choir under the direction of Mr. Eustace B. Rice.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

The Golden Text in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, November 30, will be: "Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good" (Romans, 12:21)

Among the citations which will comprise the lesson-sermon is the following one from the Bible: "Put on the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil. For we wrestle not against flesh and blood but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places. Wherefore take unto you the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to withstand in the evil day, and having done all, to stand" (Ephesians, 6:11-13).

CATHOLIC RADIO TOMORROW 1 TO 2 P. M.

Program for Sunday, Nov. 30:

Speaker: Rev. John E. Sexton, D. D., Professor of Ecclesiastical History at St. John's Seminary, Brighton.

Subject: "The Sacrament of the Holy Eucharist."

Question Box—Rev. Michael J. Ahern, S. J.

COPLEY METHODIST

Tomorrow morning Dr. Stidger will speak on Dr. J. Fort Newton's book "The Things I Know About Religion." This will be the first of a series of sermons leading up to Christmas. Prof. James R. Houghton will also begin a series of Christmas musical programs with his choir of forty young voices, both morning and evening.

CHURCH FEDERATION

The Greater Boston Federation of Churches has mailed an invitation to approximately 300 welfare agencies and institutions in Greater Boston, to a hundred employed church workers, to to the annual winter social workers quiet hour and evening, to be held next Thursday, December 4, at St. Paul's Cathedral. The service and address at 5:45 will be taken by Dr. Raymond Calkins of the First Congregational Church, Cambridge. Then follows supper at 6:45 in the parish rooms of the cathedral. Following supper, Dr. A. Warren Stearns will speak on "Case Work in Prisons."

FR. AHERN S. J., TO SPEAK

Rev. M. J. Ahearn, S. J., of Weston College, Weston, will be the speaker on Tuesday evening, December 2, in the 13th annual lecture course on charitable and social problems, given in conjunction with the evening classes of the Young Men's Catholic Association in the Boston College high school building, St. James st. His subject will be: "Evolution and Social Service."

WOMEN'S GUILD

The Catholic Women's Guild of Holy Trinity Church Boston, will hold its annual sale in aid of the children's Christmas tree fund, on Friday evening, December 5, in Casino Hall, after the Novena and Women's Retreat services.

The proceeds will also be used to send Christmas baskets to the poor of the parish. The sale will be in charge of Mrs. Catherine Berio, president of the Guild, and she will be assisted by the board of directors.

DUDLEY STREET CHURCH

People who love English music and English scenery, will have an opportunity to enjoy both at the Great "English Night" Service to be held at the Dudley Street Baptist Church, Roxbury, tomorrow evening, November 30th, at 7:15 o'clock.

REV. E. T. ROOT RETIRES

When the Rev. E. Tallmadge Root came from Connecticut to take up the work of federating Massachusetts churches the idea of any such co-operation was in its infancy. Today the retiring secretary, after 26 years, sees an entire state dotted with city and town federations and with more than half a hundred united churches in which two or more denominations have joined hands to worship under one roof.

Devoid of the spectacular, but gifted with courage and persistent determination, he has won his way, step by step, until the churches and the denominations over which he has been the benevolent and effective guardian spirit have learned to treat each other with fraternal and cordial fellowship.

Mr. Root has ever believed that religion and works must go together, and even those who hold to absolute separation between the secular and devotional, have so respected his point of view that they have not seriously opposed the many practical projects initiated at 4 Park st. He has been a heroic defender of those who strive for law enforcement; he has inspired work among rural churches. His insight into those things that are vital, led him to further in every way possible a sense of citizenship and political responsibility. He has been in a position to recommend many men both young and old for various pulpits and other places in the field of religion.

His friends, and they number in to the thousands, are expecting of him many more years of usefulness, and while he may retire from direct federation work, they are ready to co-operate with him in many other ways. His ambition for a number of years has been to take up the vocation or avocation of writing; and articles, poems, and even books are looked for from his pen. He will also be available for supply in pulpits of all denominations where a preacher is wanted who knows the problems of Protestantism and whose faith in America's religious future remains strong.

DR. M'ARTHUR IN NEW WORK

Church circles throughout Massachusetts are greatly interested in the choice of the Rev. Kenneth C. MacArthur of Stirling, Massachusetts, as the new secretary of the Massachusetts Federation of Churches with headquarters at 4 Park st. He is a man of middle age with a varied experience in many forms of church work. For several years he has bent his mind toward a solution of the problems of the rural church in connection with the federation. Dr. MacArthur's interests have included eugenics, and he holds to the belief that a study and an understanding of the principles of eugenics are functions of the church and the clergy. He has done much toward creating a program for rural churches which includes intelligent and progressive agriculture. In this work he has kept in close touch with the Massachusetts Agricultural college at Amherst. A few years ago he received an award by the National Eugenic Association for the finest family from the eugenic point of view.

For six years Dr. MacArthur was pastor of the Old Cambridge Baptist Church. He is a graduate of Worcester Academy, Harvard University, and of Union Seminary.

The Rev. Robert Stewart MacArthur, who was pastor of the Calvary Baptist Church of New York City for forty years and at one time president of the Baptist World Alliance, is his father.

For the present Dr. Kenneth MacArthur will continue his pastorate at Stirling, Massachusetts of the Federated Church there. He belongs to the liberal wing of the Baptist church, and has great sympathy with all denominations striving to make of Massachusetts a Commonwealth of high citizenship, and noble idealism.

1 MAN FREED IN KILLING, 1 HELD

Anthony DiGangi, accused with Paul Cutrona, of the murder of Samuel Guida in Willard st., West End, on November 11, was discharged from custody by Judge James Bennett in Municipal Court today.

The court found no probable cause for holding Di Gangi for the grand jury on a charge of murder.

Cutrona was held without bail for the grand jury after Stanley Skiever 14, testified he had taken the numbers of the car alleged to have been used in the killing. They corresponded with the numbers on the automobile in which Cutrona was riding when arrested.

In arguing for Di Gangi's discharge Attorney Herbert M. Callahan said the only one who had introduced the name of Di Gangi into the case was Sergt. Hugh Sullivan. Sullivan he said, had learned the name in questioning Di Gangi's wife at the Joy st police station.

P. O. Employes Urged to Aid Unemployed

Postal employes have been urged by Postmaster Charles R. Gow to assist the unemployed by doing their Christmas shopping now. On a pamphlet sent to each employe is printed in bold face type the following:

"Do your Christmas shopping now! ! ! and help the unemployed."

Socony Introduces New Dewaxed Oil

The new Socony Dewaxed Paraffine Base Motor Oil marketed by the Standard Oil Co. of New York, was explained in a series of talks accompanied by motion pictures to several hundred employes of the Boston office yesterday afternoon at the Hotel Statler.

The speakers included Charles B. Jones, general manager of the Boston division; L. A. Myers, division lubricating manager; H. J. Bode, assistant division lubricating manager; J. A. McCausland, division educational supervisor, and Parks Odenwaller, Cambridge district personnel manager.

The new oil, it was asserted, is the last word in automotive lubricants. More than 200 crude from every source were examined. One of the company's 18 available refineries was selected to manufacture the new oil, to insure uniform quality.

The motion pictures showed the test made at the Indianapolis speedway under the official supervision of the A. A. A. After 7290 miles of driving, the average year's mileage for the ordinary driver, the oil was pronounced in good condition, despite the gruelling test.

$25,000 Hotel Fire

New York, Nov. 29 (AP) — The Jerome Hotel in the Sheepshead Bay section of Brooklyn was damaged by fire today. The loss was set at $25,000.

NAVAL FORCES REORGANIZED

Washington, Nov. 29—The inauguration of "type commanders" is to be the outstanding feature of the complete reorganization of America's naval forces ordered today by Secretary Charles Francis Adams to take effect April 1.

The new program not only includes the set-up of the United States fleet but the machinery of command as well, and will supplant the temporary reorganization plan which was put into effect recently.

Under the new policy each type commander will exercise control of vessels of the type attached to the several forces as the commander-in-chief may direct.

A type commander will be in direct charge of all battleships; cruisers with their attached air craft; destroyers with their tenders; submarines with their tenders; rescue vessels and submarine bases; aircraft with carriers, tenders and bases; and mine craft, including layers and sweepers.

Sen. Walsh Boomed for the Presidency

Senator David I. Walsh was boomed as the logical candidate for the Presidency in 1932 by Chairman Frank J. Donahue of the Democratic State committee, speaking last night at a banquet at Pine Grove Inn, Marlboro, in honor of Representative-elect Stephen A. Manning.

"Senator Walsh would be an excellent candidate for our party and Democrats should go to the next national convention pledged to support him," said Donahue.

Majestic Eight Feet Longer Than Leviathan

"Which is longer the Leviathan or the Majestic?"

This question was asked repeatedly of the Maritime Association of the Chamber of Commerce yesterday.

The Majestic is eight feet longer than the Leviathan, but two and one-half feet narrower. The Leviathan has a gross registered tonnage of 59,957, while the Majestic has 56,521. Both were built by Germany before the war. The Leviathan was formerly the Vaterland and the Majestic formerly the Bismarck.

Missing Athol Man Ousted From Office

Athol, Nov. 29—It was stated here that Carl E. Sault, Athol merchant, missing since October 23, had been deposed as treasurer of the C. E. Sault Clothing Co., and that Edward H. Smith of Boston had been elected in his place.

Jane Newton of Royalston, who disappeared about the time of Sault, has returned to her home. Her story is that the two traveled as father and daughter through Ohio, North Carolina and other states.
